SIR J. ROBINSON DECLINES PEERAGE

London, June 30.—At the end of a long speech in the House of Lords yesterday afternoon dealing with the conferment of King's birthday honors generally, and the case of Sir Joseph Robinson's peerage particularly, Lord Chancellor Birkenhead said Sir Joseph had written a letter from South Africa to the Prime Minister declining the proffered peerage. The Lord Chancellor read the letter, dated June 23, which was as follows: "I have read with surprise the discussion which took place in the House of Lords upon the proposed offer of a peerage to myself. I have not, as you know, in any way sought the suggested honor. It is now some sixty years since I commenced as a pioneer the task of building industries in South Africa. I am now a very old man, to whom honors and dignities can no longer be matters of much concern.

"I should be sorry if any honor conferred upon me were the occasion of such ill feeling as was manifested in the House of Lords yesterday, and though I deeply appreciate the honor which has been suggested, I should wish, if I may, without discourtesy to yourself and without impropriety, to beg His Majesty's permission to decline the proposal."

AN ONTARIO DEATH.

Kingston, Ont., June 30.—Rev. Barry Pierce, 71, who for thirty years was an active minister in the Montreal Methodist Conference, died here yesterday.

TORONTO PRINTERS GIVEN HIGHER WAGES

Toronto, June 30.—An increase of three dollars a week is secured by the printers employed by the Toronto newspapers under an agreement signed yesterday after several weeks of negotiation. The agreement, which will extend for two years and nine months, or until March 31, 1924, makes the scale $12.50 a week for the employees of morning papers and $41 for those on evening papers. The latter also secure a reduction of work instead of 48, while the morning paper men will remain on the 43-hour week basis.

LONDON, ONTARIO, MAN FAILS TO SECURE MARRIAGE LICENSE

London, Ont., June 30.—Setting a precedent for Ontario, City Clerk Baker, who is the sole issuer of marriage licenses in London, has risked legal action being taken against him by his refusal to issue a license to a citizen on the ground that the man's physical condition did not warrant marriage.

RAIN IN MANITOBA.

Winnipeg, June 30.—Rain fell throughout the Winnipeg district yesterday afternoon and last night. The crops were not suffering at all but the additional moisture will be welcome.

NINE MORE MEMBERS IN THE COMMONS

There Will Be 244 Members
After Distribution

Ottawa, June 30.—There will be 244 members in the House of Commons after the next redistribution, according to the revised population figures of Canada, which have been given out to the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. That will be an increase of nine members over the present House.

The distribution of the members among the provinces in the present House and after redistribution will compare as follows on the basis of these figures:

Province	New House	Present House
Prince Edward Island	4	4
Quebec	65	65
Nova Scotia	14	14
New Brunswick	11	11
Ontario	81	82
Manitoba	17	15
Saskatchewan	21	16
Alberta	16	12
British Columbia	14	13
Yukon	1	1
Totals	244	235

It is not certain that the Yukon will retain its separate representation after redistribution. That territory was first given a member by act of Parliament in 1902. At that time there was a population of 27,319, but at present it is only 4,157.

According to an announcement made by Premier King at the close of Parliament a redistribution bill will be introduced at the session which is to open in January next.

Ottawa, June 30.—It is not unlikely that the new board of management of the Canadian National Railways will be appointed shortly.

The Cabinet is busy with arrears of business which accumulated during the latter part of the session, when the time of the Government was fully occupied with the immediate problems confronting it in Parliament. These matters are being disposed of as rapidly as possible and it is understood that the appointment of the new board of the Canadian National Railways will be one of the early problems dealt with as soon as the decks are cleared.

AUSTRALIA TO BE REPRESENTED AT BIG EMPIRE FAIR

London, June 30.—(Canadian Press Cable)—Speaking in the Australian House of Representatives, says a Reuter dispatch from Melbourne, Hon. Walter Massey Greene, Minister of Customs, said Australia's representation at the British Empire Exhibition in London in 1924 would cost £200,000.

THE TORTURE OF INDIGESTION

Thousands Made Miserable
By This Trouble

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" Relieves It

What is indigestion and what causes it? As you know, solid food must be changed into a liquid by the stomach before it can be taken up as nourishment by the blood. The stomach acts as a churn. It is covered by a strong muscular coat and lined with a soft, delicate membrane which secretes the Gastric Juice which digests or dissolves solid food.

When food enters the stomach, the muscular coat squeezes and presses the food from end to end, or churns it, with the gastric juice to dissolve or digest it.

But—if the stomach muscles are weak—or if the dissolving fluid is poor or insufficient—then food cannot be digested properly and you have indigestion.

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" is the most wonderful medicine in the world for strengthening the stomach muscles and providing an abundance of pure, full-strength dissolving fluid to completely digest every meal. "FRUIT-A-TIVES" does this because it keeps the kidneys active, the bowels regular and the blood pure, which insures pure Gastric Juice.

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" will correct your Indigestion or Dyspepsia and enable you to enjoy every meal.

SUGGESTS PLAN FOR REPARATIONS

French Premier Urges Better
Export Tax Collection

Paris, June 30.—The Senate gave Premier Poincare a vote of confidence yesterday following a vote on the question of German reparations. M. Poincare declaring in the course of the discussion that the Allies had arrived at the turning point on the question of reparations, "will make every endeavor to avoid getting into a blind alley."

Germany, M. Poincare said, was struggling with a financial crisis, but she had provoked it herself, and meanwhile her industries were flourishing.

"German companies," the Premier continued, "distributed forty per cent in dividends on an average in 1921, and the German merchant fleet already has been reorganized and now occupies third rank in the world."

Germany, said the Premier, was buying back ships delivered to Great Britain, was building heavily and was engaged in considerable extensions of her railroads, these extensions even comprising some of the distinctly military character.

"We can not accept these outlays unless Germany begins paying her debts," he said.

"The Premier suggested as remedies 'the putting into effect of a really effective organization for the collection of taxes on Germany's exports, the proceeds of which would be deposited with the Reichsbank, or, if that is insufficient, credit accumulated abroad by Germans in foreign money must be applied to the payment of reparations.'"

100,000 COAL MINERS IDLE IN OLD COUNTRY

London, June 30.—(Canadian Press Cable)—The position of the coal mining industry, which is creating considerable uneasiness here, will be discussed at a special meeting of the national executive of the Miners' Federation in London next Thursday, when the existing agreement with the mine owners will come under review.

Reports received at the headquarters of the federation from the various coal areas show there is a prevailing depression, one of the severest in the history of the industry. It is stated on the authority of Frank Hodges, Secretary of the Miners' Federation, that the number of unemployed pit workers exceeds 100,000. Many mines are working only three or four days a week.

Canada Has Indian Population of 105,965

Report of Ottawa Department
Gives Facts

Ottawa, June 30.—Fiction writers are wont to picture the Indian as shiftless, unpractical and unwilling to acquire the customs of his white brothers. Fiction depicts the red man living in poor conditions, dirty and sordid surroundings, hunting in the Summer and trapping a little in the Winter and with the minimum of his existence the Government bounty. This, according to the Department of Indian Affairs here, is a most erroneous impression, directly contrary to the facts of the case.

The annual report of the Department not only claims the great majority of "Canadian Indians" to be sound physically, morally and mentally, but claims them to be among the most solid citizens of Canada financially. In particularizing upon their mental attainments, the Department even claims them to be of a superior mental type to that common during the middle of the last century.

Valuable Holdings.

The majority of Indians are farmers with ample, well-cultivated holdings, though on the frontiers of civilization many still follow the trail. Their wealth is very substantial, with permanent, real and personal property owned by the Indians in Canada being estimated by the Government at $68,502,140 as compared with $67,515,977 in 1920.

It is estimated that the total Indian population of Canada, exclusive of the aboriginal Eskimo tribes, is 105,965. The per capita wealth of the Indian population, therefore, based on this figure would be $682.96, an extremely high ratio.

The Government report says that among the less civilized groups the high birth rate, but in the civilized tribes, which have met and withstood the fire shock of the contact with civilization there is an appreciable gain, not only in numbers but in physical standards.

25,694 in British Columbia.

The distribution of the Indian population throughout the various provinces is given as follows: Ontario, 28,411; British Columbia, 25,694; Quebec, 13,366; Saskatchewan, 10,646; Alberta, 8,537; Manitoba, 11,533; Nova Scotia, 2,931; New Brunswick, 1,846; Prince Edward Island, 232; Indians resident in the Yukon and Northwest Territories are estimated to number 45,292.

The principal source of income of the Indians is, of course, farming. The total value of farm and livestock products produced on Indian farms during 1921 is placed at $3,945,171, which was distributed in the various provinces as follows: Alberta, $566,730; British Columbia, $27,889; Saskatchewan, $884,078; Manitoba, $230,652; New Brunswick, $19,189; Nova Scotia, $27,460; Ontario, $932,709; Quebec, $355,395 and Prince Edward Island, $3,500.

In addition to the income from agriculture, Indians received the sum of $2,762,773 for labor; $284,863 for land rentals and timber; $1,046,760 for fishing; $660,494 for hunting and trapping; $702,575 in annuities and interest from Indian Trust Funds; $1,103,910 from other industries and occupation, bringing the total earnings of the Indian population in 1921 to $10,670,549, which, considered in relation to the population, means a per capita income for every man, woman and child of the Indian population of $102.35.

Lumber.

In connection with the lumbering operations conducted on Indian reservations during 1921, the Government figures of the cut indicate a total of 58,000,000 board feet. In addition to this figure, all of which was utilized for sale, the Indians themselves cut approximately 10,000,000 board feet for building and fencing, and 20,000 cords of fuel for domestic use, besides an unreported quantity of material for the manufacture of axe-handles, hockey sticks, snares, shoes and other articles in which the Indians specialize.

In the forest conservation work being carried out throughout the country, the Indian is playing an increasingly important part. Government figures indicate. The expert woodsmen of the tribes are found to be ideal fire rangers and timber guards under proper supervision, and their use has resulted in diminution of fire hazards in some places.

Education.

In regard to the expenditure for Indian schools and in securing academic and technical instruction for Indians, the Government has made considerable outlays. During 1921, 326 schools of all classes were in operation, of which number 253 were classified as day schools, 53 boarding schools and 15 industrial schools. There was an enrollment of 7,775 in the first category, 3,156 in the second and 1,827 in the third, making a total for the year of 12,558 pupils.

Maintenance charges for the schools referred to totalled $1,112,509 from the Government of Canada, the Indians themselves contributing an additional $47,296 for educational work.

Loans granted Indian under the Soldier Settlement plan aggregated $321,269, of which $18,496 has been repaid.

CANADA'S BIRTHDAY.

To-morrow will be the birthday of the Dominion of Canada. Fifty-five years ago, Ontario, Quebec, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia were united in one great confederation by the British North America Act passed by the Parliament of Britain. Manitoba, British Columbia, and Prince Edward Island, which had been struggling in a few years later, but Saskatchewan and Alberta did not enter the family until 1905.

The Dominion was a long time being born. From the days of the enterprising Lief the Red and his hardy Norse crew touched the Canadian shore at some point on the Atlantic Coast not exactly determined, up to July 1, 1867, eight centuries elapsed; a period which saw the momentous evolution of England under the Normans finally into the Great Britain of imperial Victoria. Then came the exploratory stage of Cartier; the pioneering and settlement era of Champlain; the evangelical crusade among the Indians of the Jesuit and Recollet Fathers with the martyrdom of Brebeuf, Lallemand, Daniel and other bearers of the Cross; the British conquest of New France; the troubles between the French settlers of Lower Canada and the British in Upper Canada and the protracted, futile efforts to find some formula of government for them; the War of 1812 with the United States; the rebellion of 1837; the union of Upper and Lower Canada in 1841; political troubles innumerable, finally culminating in Confederation as the only solution.

Although fifty-five years is a short enough time in the life of a nation and is not long even in the life of an established town, Canada is the senior overseas British Dominion. The B. N. A. Act conferring wide powers of self-government upon the new confederacy was regarded by many in England and even in some quarters in Canada as an experiment. Some timid souls branded the scheme as fatal to British connection and declared it was merely a preliminary step to the absorption of Canada into the United States. A little understanding of human nature, especially human nature in the New World, would have removed this apprehension.

The fact is Confederation kept Canada within the Empire, and if the thirteen American States had been given the same powers of self-government in 1776 this continent would have been wholly British to-day. Prior to 1867 there was a strong sentiment in Canada in favor of annexation to the States, and about the time a mob burned the Parliament Buildings and stoned the Governor-General in Montreal, a manifesto for annexation was being circulated, among its signatories being one man who afterwards became a Conservative Prime Minister of the Dominion.

The "experiment" was so successful that it was adopted as a settled policy in the British colonial system, and eventually was applied to Australia, New Zealand and South Africa. The case of South Africa was particularly striking. The Boer war had been terminated only five or six years before Sir Henry Campbell Bannerman's Government raised South Africa to Dominion status. The proposal was bitterly attacked by the Government's opponents in Parliament led by Mr. Balfour, who predicted that the Boers would throw off their allegiance to the King in the first great Imperial crisis. That crisis came in 1914, and what happened in respect of South Africa was a splendid vindication of "C.B.'s" courage and vision. Botha and Smuts, former Boer generals, were conspicuous factors in the victory of the Allies. Self-government is now being extended gradually to India. It is assured to Ireland and, although the proposal in both of these cases is being assailed in precisely the same terms with which self-government for Canada and South Africa was opposed, the policy will have the same triumphant vindication in the end.

In many respects the B. N. A. Act has had an elastic application. From time to time there has been a broadening of its implication notably in respect of Canada's overseas relations, which not only goes beyond the strict letter of the act, but disregards some of its provisions. Wide as the powers of Canada's self-government under that Act are, the Dominion has been conceded an even more important status in practice as an autonomous section of the British Commonwealth. This has been shown in the negotiation of treaties affecting Canadian interests, Canada's relations with the United States, her separate representation in the League of Nations, and Mr. Lloyd George's announcement at Cannes recently that any agreement Britain negotiated with France for future security would have to be approved by the Parliaments of the various Overseas Dominions before it could be binding upon the British Empire.

To-morrow, therefore, will be the anniversary of more than the birth of the Dominion of Canada. It will be the anniversary of the rebirth of the British Empire in the form of a great Britannic partnership, the beginning of a real League of Nations in place of the old, discredited, centralized Imperial system whose counterparts fill the graveyards of history, and of which the Empires of the Romans, the Hohenzollerns and Hapsburgs were the most conspicuous examples in modern times.

OLD ARGUMENTS.

Agricultural interests in Great Britain are doing their level best to put their case before the Canadian stockmen by means of a circular letter in defence of the British embargo against this country's cattle. But it is surprising that no novelty has been introduced into the arguments advanced. The question of disease is trotted out once more and the contention emphasized that if the Motherland were to remove the restriction in favor of admitting Canadian cattle British ports would automatically be free to the stock of other countries and protection from disease would disappear. This sort of persuasion may go down in some quarters; but the average individual will merely recall the findings of the Finlay Commission, the clean bill of health for Canadian cattle which it gave, and the pledge given at the Imperial Conference in 1917. For the rest he will understand that the British Government would not in any way be bound to throw down the bars to all and sundry by repealing the embargo against Canada's cattle. Since the regulation is purely sanitary its application should be dictated by circumstances. Only when the restriction is an economic one does the wider aspect of the case obtrude.

A WEIRD MOVE.

District Number 26 of the United Mine Workers of America now in convention at Truro, N. S., has decided to send a delegate to the Alberta and British Columbia Division to take up with the miners of District Number 18 the question of sending a representative from Canada to the Red Internationale Trades Union in Moscow to negotiate on the matter of affiliation with that body. We do not profess to know whether the mission of the gentleman from Nova Scotia will meet with success among the miners of this Province or whether their good sense will suggest a reply that will reflect the more general opinion of the Moscow organization. But it would be interesting to discover just why any branch of an obviously strong and wealthy body such as the United Mine Workers of America should find the least attraction in affiliation with a radical wing that has already been shunned by every decent member of organized Labor in the world. Does the Truro local believe that its own strength in Canada would be enhanced by an official connection with Moscow?

SAANICH HEALTH CENTRE

To the Editor:—With reference to a letter which appeared in last night's Times, the above mentioned subject and signed by W. Foster, as this man is an employee of the Saanich Municipality, I presume that, according to the usual procedure, he received permission to write the communication, and I would therefore request him to go back to the people who instructed him to write upon the subject and secure more definite information regarding the routine of the Health Centre.

I would also refer him to the remarks of the Director-General of the Victorian Order of Nurses, Dr. McEachern, regarding the suitability of the Health Centre, that gentleman considering it an ideal place to handle all cases according to the by-law passed by the people.

Mr. Foster had no right to endeavor to introduce the subject of trade unionism into the matter at all, as this was not under discussion.

When a person has a weak case he usually endeavors to introduce extraneous matters into the discussion.

By introducing the question of trade unionism Mr. Foster has cast a fair aspersion upon ratepayers of Saanich who, according to their own principles, may endorse unions, these people contributing towards payment of his wages.

So far as Councillor McNicol is concerned, the people that he will answer for himself at a later date.

It is a well known fact that cur dogs bark at the heels of a building and if it affords them any satisfaction, let them.

THE OTHER SIDE.

To the Editor:—In regard to the settlers brought from England, under the auspices of the Queen Charlotte Islands Natural Resources, Ltd., there are many phases to prove that the promoters of the company are anxious to build up, and settle the islands with a class of Englishmen and women of a kind beneficial to all concerned.

The company is capitalized at $50,000. Its main object appeared to be the building of a large settlement at Massett, a town at the entrance to Massett Inlet, one of the best waterways in British Columbia. Some of the most prominent people in London became interested, and stock in the company is selling at £1. The company owns a large block of land at Massett, in which three medical men, all returned soldiers, are interested. These medical men accompanied the few settlers, already at Massett, and immediately took upon themselves to improve the town, by purchasing and improving property.

Outside of the medical men there are but seven other men, some with families, while others are single men. The men have employment, and the women, if they so desire, may have employment in the canneries, at good wages. None went out on pre-emptions, while all were provided with houses and garden lots, on the townsite. They were not cast upon a lonely island, without means of subsistence, but are in a town where they have the conveniences of a department store, telegraph and telephone office, post office, government wharves; in fact, they live in a settlement where many others have homes, and were residents of the islands for many years.

The writer is not interested in any way with the "Queen Charlotte Islands Natural Resources, Ltd." If the company is preparing to build up a country with their own capital and to start industries, why should their actions be criticized adversely? If the company is misrepresenting things, it is not the duty of those complaining to come right out and show where the misrepresentation is? All, so far, has been innuendo. Not one critic has the malice to write with his own signature. The former residents are averse to the introduction of settlers, who appear anxious to take up land on a "shoestring." At the same time we hear no protests at the introduction of hundreds of Japanese and Chinese, now working in the industries on the islands—taking the places which might be occupied by the unemployed of our own race. Apparently, there is no objection to building up a country with Asiatics, on the part of employers, but the moment it is proposed to replace the labor, which is sapping the life-blood of the country, a hue and cry arises from the overworked cities, and the only reason therefor is that a private company is introducing settlers, instead of their acting on their own initiative.

If the "Natural Resources, Ltd." proposes to send along farmers, without the necessary means or the appliances to clear the land, this should be prevented. We have land, and to spare, on the islands; but conditions are not favorable for those who require land, near cities, or on the lines of railways. Massett is a well located as any other portion of the country, white men, with women and children, have lived on the islands for twenty years. There are eight schools, with over two hundred scholars, and we have the first death of a white child to record whose death was from natural causes. We have still to see the first applicant for relief, and the natural resources of the islands will compare most favorably with any other portion of the Province. While people are lamenting the introduction of settlers on the Queen Charlotte Islands, a Senator from the United States is now engaged in rounding up one hundred head of cattle at Massett, which were "in the open" during the whole of last Winter. The daylight at this time extends for twenty hours of the twenty-four. The thermometer never reaches zero in the Winter, and the snowfall is the least in the whole Province.

There are people in the Old Country, desirous of leaving the large centres, to lead the simple life in a country far removed from the turmoil and worries attendant on city life. They have capital, and are prepared to start industries, such as lumbering, fishing and mining. Where is there a better opportunity than in certain portions of this Province? These are rich men in England, who desire to escape taxation and the loss of their all, and are desirous of changing their environment. If I understand correctly, it is men and women of this class that the Queen Charlotte Islands Natural Resources, Ltd., desire to interest.

It is but just to Mr. Charles Harrison, the original promoter of the Company, to state that I have a letter from him, in which he states: "Only persons with capital amounting to from $500 to $1,500, will be permitted to join the Company and take up residence at Massett." If others intend coming it must be at their own risk, or through misrepresentation. The Queen Charlotte Islands require people with capital. Give the Queen Charlotte Islands a proper transportation service, with roads and the conveniences so liberally distributed in other portions of the Province; and replace the Asiatic labor with that of our race, and no complaint will be made of a country which is now contributing far more in revenue to the government than any other section of British Columbia. Despite adverse criticism, the settlers already here propose to remain, and the government has no right to interfere with them. At the same time the pioneer settlers are not desirous of having the introduction of a class unprepared to meet conditions, as they exist today, the "Outpost of Empire," where the first consideration should be the wherewithal to open up an undeveloped country, little known to the world, and the terminus of a trans-continental railway, but eighty-five miles distant. They appear to be so much engaged in finding employment for their needy settlers that the opportunities before them in other places will be permitted to fall into the hands of Asiatics and the starving foreign birth, while the starving millions of unemployed will continue to walk the pavements of the great cities, seeking bread for the hungry women and children.

THOMAS DEASY.

Latest radiograms to-day from the Hon. T. P. Pattullo, Minister of Lands, and his party who are conducting the first inspection of the forest resources of the coast, by airplane tell of the success of the tour and report that all members are safe. Norman and Clifford English, timber producers, who accompanied the Minister in his flight from Vancouver early in the week put the Minister and his party up at Nimble, from where survey inspection work was conducted.

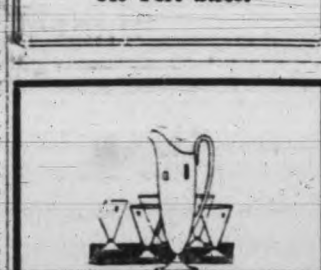

The Minister and members of his staff, including P. Z. Caverhill, Major Andrews, district forester, and Henry C. Copeland, editor of the Western Lumberman, later left by the forest patrol boat, R. J. Skinner for a further trip up the coast to view timber areas before they return to Victoria on Saturday.

The forest patrol air plane No. 3 with Major McLaurin and the Cliffords have returned to Vancouver.

Low prices were a feature of trading at the Victoria Public Market when they held a very successful and holiday season. Blackberries and currants were quoted very low prices when they were picked up by the traders at as low as 20 cents a basket. Strawberries commenced their climb, and jam berries were practically the only berry of this variety on the market. Flowers made an exceptionally good display to-day at the lowest price they have ever exhibited yet. Roses were selling at five cents a bunch, while sweet peas were picked up at three bunches for 25 cents. Some real genuine Scottish heather was also on display at 10 cents a bunch.

Among the vegetables new potatoes and green peas provided the feature of the day when the peas slid down to a quotation of three pounds for 25 cents. New potatoes were selling at the same price. Dairy prices remain the same as ever, while the remainder of the market is very quiet. Interest is developing in the market now in a coming market show which the public market has conducted in previous years. It is the intention to run one this year, and interest is already developing in the prospect of having this show.

ASKS GROUP TO AID TIDINESS CAMPAIGN

Alderman Todd Appeals for Neater Camping Places

The Tourist Group of the Chamber of Commerce, at lunch at the Spencer tea rooms this afternoon, was appealed to by Alderman Todd to aid the Joint Beaches and Parks Committee in its effort to keep the camping and picnicking grounds of the district from becoming untidy.

"I ask you to help us end this practice of scattering paper, boxes, rubbish and scraps around, as is all too prevalent a habit with excursionists. We are trying to run these resorts with very little money, and any which has to be devoted to cleaning up after picnickers is merely wasted," he said.

Chairman Warring appealed for volunteers to work this evening at the camping place for visitors which the Group has arranged at the Gorge, and secured a prompt response.

Secretary Warren, of the Publicity Bureau, described recent travel aids installed to direct visitors to points of interest, such as the Butchart Gardens.

The Saanich waterworks system was this morning extended to give connection to the camping places at Mount Douglas Park.

WAS WELL-KNOWN AS CANDY MAKER

Herbert Alfred Lilley, who for over forty years conducted a candy store on Douglas Street and was well-known to old-time residents of Victoria, died yesterday at the King's Daughters' Hospital, Duncan, at the age of 83 years. The late Mr. Lilley was born in England and came to Victoria forty-five years ago, residing in this city until his retirement from business, three years ago, when he went to Crofton to reside. He is survived by one brother, George W. Lilley, at Crofton, and two sisters, Mrs. J. P. Elford, Portland, and Mrs. J. H. Elford, Victoria. The funeral will be held from the Sand's Funeral Chapel on Monday at 2.30. Interment will be made at Ross Bay Cemetery.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO TO-DAY

Victoria Daily Times, June 30, 1897

Ottawa, June 30.—Sir Henri Joly and William Paterson were sworn members of the Privy Council to-day. They are now full-fledged ministers under the new statute, but only receive $5,000 salary. Col. Waring was nominated by the Conservatives of North York yesterday for the local House. The sitting member is Hon. E. J. Davis, Provincial Secretary.

Chicago, June 29.—Three persons were killed outright and about 20 or 30 persons injured in a rear-end collision on the Chicago and North-west Railway at 1.55 this morning at West Chicago, on the Grand division. The victims were Christian Endeavor delegates who left Chicago last night en route to the great convention at San Francisco.

Among the passengers who arrived by the steamer Empress of China yesterday was Robert Jack, of Robert Jack & Company, Hongkong.

Although the Nippon Yusen Kaisha raised its freight rates twenty per cent in February last, it has found that amount to be insufficient, and has now signified its intention of raising them another ten per cent. At the half yearly meeting of the company, which took place at Tokyo on May 27, it was shown that the company had lost heavily on the workings of the foreign service, the total losses of the half year being about 160,000 yen.

Prince Rupert, June 30.—The halibut catch out of this port in June will total more than 2,950,000 pounds.

EDDY'S everywhere

IN THE HOME

Faithful servants of the home, wherever men have built a safe shelter against heat or cold, Eddy's have found their way by right of necessity, comfort, convenience and safety. The first thing in the morning, the last thing at night, in the homes of the rich as well as of the most humble—an Eddy match lights the way.

EDDY'S everywhere

IN THE WOODS

Hunters, trappers, coureurs des bois in the great silence, whose very life depends on the match that starts the evening fire, have relied on Eddy's since the days of flint and steel. Eddy's early realized that conservation was more important than re-forestation. The perfection of Eddy match-safety has saved millions to Canada through prevention of fire losses.

EDDY'S everywhere

ON THE WATER

"Sure ye got the matches?" is their last question before leaving shore for the vasty deep. Drenched to the skin but for his oilskins, his sole companion his pipe, how quickly it lights up with the appearance of an Eddy match—sure as a flash of lightning in a stormy sky. They swear by Eddy's on the Banks.

EDDY'S everywhere

ON THE TRAIL

In the long marches, in the barren wilds—to the end of the trail with these fearless riders, Eddy's has been their constant companion and friend. Out through the Crow's Nest Pass, in the Hudson Bay Posts, on the icy coasts, they count on Eddy matches. Faithful members of the Light Brigade, Eddy's have been an invaluable ingredient of law and order.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Friendly Help Society.—The monthly meeting of the Friendly Help Association will be held on Tuesday morning, July 4, at 10:30 in the rooms over the Market Building.

New Recognized.—The new cemetery beyond Royal Oak became a legal entity last night, when the Saanich Council formally amended the cemetery by-law by inclusion of the site.

Author's Association.—The regular monthly meeting of the Victoria and Island Branch of the Canadian Authors' Association will take place on Monday, at 8 p. m., at the Island Arts and Crafts room, 203 Union Bank Building.

Cranleigh House School.—Cranleigh House School, which opened in September at the Willows Hotel, which Mr. Milton has bought, with over two acres of grounds. The site was made through the agency of Messrs. Power & McLaughlin.

To Hold Garden Party.—The various ladies' organizations of St. Mark's Church, Boleskine Road, will hold a garden party and sale of work on Wednesday next at the home of Miss Beane, corner Dupplin and Burnside Roads. There will be the usual stalls and attractions.

Heavy Water Consumption.—Many complaints as to lack of water pressure were last night laid before the Saanich Council, most of the letters alleging the Gordon Head extension as the cause. The Council was informed that consumption has recently taken an enormous jump, running over 2,000,000 gallons daily. Improvements are pending to remedy matters.

Relief For Soldiers.—Mayor Marchant this morning agreed to meet a deputation from the Canadian Legion and discuss the possibility of giving some relief to soldiers owning homes constructed under the Better Housing Act and now entered upon the assessment roll for the full value. The meeting will take place at the City Hall Committee Room at 10 o'clock on Tuesday.

No Council Planned.—Unless something of an emergency nature should transpire, there will be no session of the City Council on Monday, it was announced this morning at the City Hall. Aldermen were interested in this decision in view of the statement of Mayor Marchant that he will return the race meet betting resolution for reconsideration at the first opportunity.

Army and Navy Picnic.—The Army and Navy Veterans in Canada, Victoria, cordially invite the public to participate in the basket picnic to be held at Rod Hill to-morrow. Tickets can be obtained at Day's Wharf, Esquimalt, before embarking on launch, which will leave at 11 o'clock. The sports will commence at 1:30 p. m., with the first event 100 yards open to men. There will be a first, second and third prize for each event.

High Cost of Speed.—One reason for increased police court levies from unwary speed merchants in Saanich was illuminated last night by the information of the Saanich Council, when it was stated that fees to Court Clerk Hallam have been based on $2.50 per case heard. The Council authorized a continuance of this payment plan to Clerk Langley, the new appointee, after commenting upon the recent rush of motorists into the official toll. "I hope it will not keep up; we are not wanting these people or their cash," declared Reeve Watson, while Councillor McWilliam opined "Business at police traps will soon ease off, and the fees from this glut of cases will offset leaner months in store for our police clerk."

Victoria-Welsh Picnic.—The Welsh Society will hold its annual basket picnic at the Uplands on July 1. All Welsh families and their friends are invited. Take No. 3 Uplands car to Lansdowne Road and proceed to the waterfront. A guide will meet all cars from 10 a. m. It is requested that all attending this picnic will bring knives and spoons. A good sports programme has been arranged. Good prizes will be awarded. The children will be provided with ice cream and soft drinks. Tea will be served by the Ladies' Auxiliary at 12 noon and 5 p. m. Crochery will be supplied on the grounds. A good time is assured. Further information will be furnished by telephoning 725.

Saanich Ward Funds.—Ward appropriations for road work in Saanich are this year based on the amount of assessable lands in each ward. At last night's session of the Saanich Council, Assessor Sewell submitted the following facts: Assessments—Ward One, $1,535,790; Ward Two, $1,238,352; Ward Three, $1,632,746; Ward Four, $1,473,558; Ward Five, $1,574,610; Ward Six, $1,380,440; Ward Seven, $1,348,476. Ward funds—Ward One, $5,840; Ward Two, $4,540; Ward Three, $5,470; Ward Four, $4,940; Ward Five, $5,270; Ward Six, $4,620; Ward Seven, $4,520. Assessments in Saanich on properties of the B. C. Electric Co. and the B. C. Telephone Co. amount to $128,197, with tax collections of $2,762. These are not included in the above data because impossible to proportion.

Pipe Contract Closed.—By authorizing a final payment of $253.34 to Yarrow's Limited for pipe supplied for the Gordon Head waterworks extension, the Saanich Council last night closed up the contract, which has involved an expenditure of $53,182.91.

G. A. U. V. Election.—The G. A. U. V. will hold its regular semi-annual election of officers at a meeting to be held at the Trades and Labor Hall, Broad Street, Monday evening at 8 o'clock. President P. Crouch will preside and among the important matters to be discussed will be the Oriental influence in West Coast fishing and the closing of the Naval College.

A. O. U. W. Excursion.—The committee in charge of the A. O. U. W. excursion to Bellingham on Wednesday next reports that everything has been completed in connection with the outing and the comfort and pleasure of those participating has been carefully looked after. It is hoped that a large crowd will turn out and make the excursion a success.

Guarantee Cemetery Bonds.—To guarantee an issue of $40,000 worth of intermunicipal cemetery bonds, the Saanich Council last night authorized Reeve Watson to sign the bonds on behalf of Saanich. The issue will bear 5 1/2 per cent., and has been sold to Pemberton & Sons and the British America Bond Corporation jointly at a 97.25 price, the being on a 5 1/2 basis.

YOUNG LAD TERRIBLY MANGLED UNDER STREET CAR WHEELS

Twelve-Year-Old Frederick R. Norris Is Seriously Hurt

Generally known as a death trap, the narrow portion of Fort Street near St. Charles Street, called the "Dardanelles," claimed another victim yesterday afternoon in a gruesome accident when Frederick R. Norris, twelve-year-old son of Mrs. F. J. Norris, 122 Douglas Street, was caught between a city-bound street car and the curb and thrown under the wheels of the street car.

The lad is lying in the Jubilee Hospital in a critical condition with his left arm amputated. Reports from the hospital this morning stated that young Norris is holding his own bravely, but is not yet out of danger. The immediate cause of the accident is not known, but it is surmised that while being overtaken by the street car, the handle of the cycle ridden by the boy scraped the side of the car and he lost his balance. The accident took place shortly before 4 p. m. yesterday, when Norris and a companion were cycling west on Fort Street. The street car approaching from behind, overtook the two lads, Norris riding in the rear of his companion.

Immediately after passing the boys Motorman Earle heard a shout and stopped the car. Norris was lying under the wheels of the rear truck on the right hand side. His left arm was terribly crushed and he was bleeding profusely.

Motorman's Prompt Action

Motorman Earle tore a strip from the boy's shirt and applied a rough tourniquet that undoubtedly prevented the boy bleeding to death. Besides the mangled arm, Norris was very badly crushed and had been dragged along the wooden rail liner with innumerable splinters being forced into his body.

The lad was conveyed to the Jubilee Hospital in a car offered by A. T. Gunn, where Dr. Boak rendered immediate assistance and amputated the mangled limb.

TWO MISSING VETERANS.

The Government of Australia is desirous of obtaining some information regarding the present addresses of two Canadians who served in the Australian forces, for whom they are holding medals or other effects. COURTESY CAMPAIGN HAS BEEN SUCCESS

Has Promoted Efficient Service Through B. C. Electric

From an official point of view the Courtesy Campaign, conducted by the B. C. Electric, came to an end to-day, but that does not mean the courtesy idea will be lost sight of in any way. It is the intention to make the most of the good results obtained during the month and use the experience gained to the best possible advantage in promoting a really courteous and efficient service throughout all departments of the company's organization.

In speaking of the results achieved, A. T. Goward, Manager, said: "In staging a campaign of this nature, one is naturally a little anxious, at the outset, as to how it will be received and taken up by the public. Personally, I felt sure our efforts would meet with a general and favorable response, but I was hardly prepared for the generous measure of co-operation and support received from all sides.

"Many letters of appreciation and a considerable number of telephone communications were received commending our efforts or drawing attention to some special act of courtesy.

"I wish to take this opportunity to say how very much I appreciate this helpful interest shown by our many patrons and customers and to assure them it is a great encouragement to the officials, members of the staff and all employees to make the 'utmost in courtesy' an outstanding feature of B. C. Electric service."

PICKERS WANTED

FOR LOWER FRASER

Bonus and Good Pay Offered
Women; Mosquito Pest
Lessened

The districts of the Lower Fraser Valley are making ready to begin to harvest their fruit crops. The growers are making a determined effort to enlist the help of the women and girl fruit pickers of the province, in the gathering of their raspberries, blackberries and loganberries. The picking is expected to begin about July 8. The prices arranged by the Fruit Growers Association for picking are very good, and in order to induce the pickers to stay as long as they are needed, a system of paying a bonus on each crate or pull is to be put into effect.

Word comes from this district that the pickers have all been oiled, so that their surface water which has formally been a breeding place for the mosquito has been closed, thus averting much of the nuisance created by this pest in former years.

J.B.A.A. TO HOLD

FLANNEL DANCE

To Be Joint Hosts With Yacht Club July 7

Members of the James Bay Athletic Association and the Yacht Club will be joint hosts at a dance to be held at the Yacht Club on July 7, for the purpose of raising funds to enable local crews to be sent to the N. P. A. A. regatta at Portland next month. The promoters are sparing no effort to make the dance a success to commensurate with the many precious entertainments of this nature and special attention is being paid to the decorations, music and the supper.

Tickets for the affair may be obtained from the secretary of the J. B. A. A., T. D. Roberts, or at Frost and Frost's.

Final arrangements for the dance will be made at a meeting of the J. B. A. A. on Monday evening, when the future social programme will also be discussed.

MRS. FARRIS OPENED BAPTIST LADIES' AID GARDEN PARTY

Mrs. J. W. de B. Farris formally opened the garden party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. Spoford, Pembroke Street, yesterday afternoon under the auspices of the Baptist Ladies' Aid of the First Baptist Church. In her opening address she referred with regret to her pending departure from the city and severance from the garden party which she had always had the most pleasant associations. Mrs. Angus Galbraith, president of the Ladies' Aid, who introduced Mrs. Farris, paid tribute to her ever-willing service on behalf of the church. At the close of the little ceremony Mrs. Farris was presented with a lovely bouquet of roses.

The many attractive stalls in the grounds were well patronized during the afternoon and evening, much business being done at the fancy work booth in charge of Mrs. Griffiths and Mrs. Ogden; ice cream, Mrs. Dismore; home cooking, Mrs. Penhume; tea room, Mrs. Haverstock. Tea was served in the Summer house.

The manager and staff of the Douglas Street branch of the Bank of Montreal, held a picnic at Norfolk Lodge, Elk Lake, the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Oldfield, yesterday afternoon. The party motored out to the scene and spent an enjoyable time in the lovely gardens, just now in all the glory of their Summer beauty.

Last evening a quiet wedding took place at "Breadalbane," 1185 Fort Street, when the Rev. Dr. Campbell officiated at the ceremony which united Miss Mary Ann Mars, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Mars, of Seaview Avenue, the bride of Mr. Jesse Bayliss, of this city. The bride was very pretty in a gown of white crepe de Chine, with hat en suite. After a honeymoon Mr. and Mrs. Bayliss will make their home in Victoria.

Announcement was received in the city to-day of the marriage at Glendale, California, of George Dickson and Miss Velma Rice, formerly of Victoria. The ceremony was performed on Wednesday, June 28, at 8 p.m. by the Rev. A. E. Edmunds at the Presbyterian Church. Miss Rice, who left for the South on last Saturday's boat from Victoria, was attended by Miss Dorothy Keele as bridesmaid, and Mr. Percy Cull supported the bridegroom.

Yesterday afternoon the officers of Work Point Barracks were hosts at their usual weekly tennis and tea dance. Mrs. Cobbett acting as hostess for the occasion. Among those present were Mrs. Ross, Mrs. Greer, Mrs. Codville, Mrs. Allan, Mrs. Sherman, Mrs. Westmoreland, Mrs. Dugald Gillespie, Miss Margaret Sayward, Mrs. Underwood, Mrs. Hemming, Miss Alice Nash, Miss Casey, Col. Greer, Major Sherman, Major Cobbett, Major Hughes, Capt. Campbell, Mr. Bradbrook, Capt. Hemming, Mr. Black, Mr. Ross and others.

Mrs. J. D. Hunter entertained at a children's party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hunter, Government Street, yesterday afternoon, in honor of the fourth birthday of her little son, Douglas Bruce. The little guests included Velda and Josephine Pihet, Jean Lennox, Betty Bechtel, Kathleen Wilson, Biggerstaff and Starfield Martin, "Kewpie" Mackay, Norman Payne, Teddy Payne, Daphne and Phyllis Pooley, Audrey Houser-Dixon, Heddley Mitchell, Eleanor Heisterman, Barbara and Peter Cockburn, Gwendyth Thomas, Sheila McBride, Jack and Marjorie Todd and Pamela Winslow.

Mrs. E. P. Davis, Marine Drive, Vancouver, entertained at the luncheon hour Wednesday at her residence, in honor of her guest, Mrs. A. C. Flumerfelt, of Victoria. The table was prettily arranged in white jasmine and pink roses, and afterwards several tables of bridge were enjoyed on the spacious balconies overlooking the sea. Among those present were

KUMTUKS CLUB

The Kumtuku Club will hold its regular monthly business meeting on Monday evening, July 3, at 8 o'clock in the Alexandra Club, Pemberton Building. Miss Benson will take the chair and an interesting address will be given by Miss Macrae. Every member is asked to attend as final arrangements will be made for the evening picnic to be held on Monday, July 10, at Mrs. Shaw's Summer camp.

Mrs. J. W. McFarlane, Mrs. A. D. McKee, Mrs. F. W. Peters, Mrs. C. C. Kator, Mrs. H. Ayiff-Langford, Mrs. Ross, Mrs. C. W. Henshaw, Mrs. W. F. Brougham, Mrs. W. R. Hutchins, Mrs. A. Brignall and Mrs. Flumerfelt.

Miss Rhoda A. Tibbals, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Tibbals, of Federick Street, and Claus Victor Nicholson, of Golden, B.C., were the principals in a pretty wedding last evening at St. Mark's Church, Bole-skine Road. The church was beautifully decorated in pink and white for the ceremony, which was performed by the rector, Rev. H. V. Hitchcock. The bride was a pretty picture in her wedding gown of white silk with filmy veil of embroidered tulle and bouquet of pink and white sweet peas. Her two sisters, the Misses Katie and Beatrice Tibbals, were bridesmaids, attired alike in pale blue gowns. Mr. A. F. McKellion supported the bridegroom. After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. McKellion, James Bay, the young couple leaving later on a honeymoon trip to Seattle. Later they will make their home at Golden.

CHAPTER ARRANGES FOR COMMEMORATION OF HEATHER DAY

At a special meeting of the Lady Douglas Chapter, I. O. O. E., yesterday afternoon, arrangements were made for the annual Heather Day on August 26 in commemoration of the departure of the first contingent from Victoria. Communications included a letter from the historic committee of the Chamber of Commerce regarding the conservation of historic places around Victoria, and Mrs. McClellan, Mrs. Gordon and Mrs. Bayliss were elected a committee to confer with the Chamber.

Announcement was made that the recent bride at the home of Mrs. R. E. Green, had netted $107.50 for the Chapter funds and a hearty vote of thanks was expressed to Mrs. Green for her generous hospitality. A donation of $22 was voted to the Soldiers' Graves Committee. A standing vote of sympathy was passed to Mrs. P. C. Green in the death of her mother, Mrs. Hatt.

DELIGHTFUL FETE AT "MOLTON COMBE"

Gonzales Chapter, I. O. O. E., Beneficiaries by Yesterday's Function

The lovely gardens at "Molton Combe," Oak Bay, the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Simpson were thronged yesterday afternoon with visitors supporting the garden party arranged in aid of the funds of the Gonzales Chapter, I. O. O. E. So popular was the function that the sum of $232 was raised during the afternoon for the Chapter's treasury.

Mrs. L. B. Kent, regent of the Chapter, assisted the hostess in welcoming the many guests and acted as general convener of the arrangements. Bridge was in progress in the house, under the direction of Mrs. Chas. Todd and Mrs. T. S. Gore, those convening tables being Mrs. Irving, Mrs. Pattullo, Lady McBride, Mrs. Rithet, Miss Agnew, Mrs. Scott, Mrs. A. F. Griffiths, Mrs. Lawrence, Miss Simpson, Mrs. Tuck, Mrs. Wilson, Mrs. Ewing, Mrs. Bridges, Miss Angus, Mrs. Holmes, Mrs. Pooley, Mrs. Fraser, Mrs. Small, Mrs. Goepel, Miss Norma Macdonald, Miss Helen Macdonald, Mrs. Scott and Mrs. Hargrave.

A particularly delightful feature of the afternoon was the dancing by a number of the gifted little pupils of Mrs. Wendell Shaw and Madame Valda. The dancers wended their way through the rose-covered pergolas to the lawn headed by little Gloria Wilson, strikingly costumed as a gorgeous black and gold butterfly and reposing in a Japanese rickshaw beautifully decorated with mauve and pink wisteria and drawn by her brother, Roger Wilson, in realistic Chinese coolie costume. After the charming procession had wound its way among the admiring spectators, the little pupils of Madame Valda danced a graceful minuet, followed by a presentation of Mendelssohn's Spring song. Little Miss Peggy Piddcock, a diminutive and adorable Queen Elizabeth, danced a "pas seul" reminiscent of the courtly pavane, and Miss Trixie Locke, a graceful little fairy in orange and black, performed a delightful dance in ballerina style, both little soloists being pupils of Madame Valda.

In the intervals between the dances, clock golf and golf croquet under the guidance of Miss Marian Pitts and Mrs. G. B. Barnard proved popular, many patrons trying their skill. Pretty china parasols were sold by Mrs. Fred Belsion, who was assisted by her two small sons, Philip and Dorian; Mrs. E. H. Griffiths sold delicious candies at a booth gaily decorated with scarlet and white under a scarlet-petalled sunshade; the Misses Millicent Umbach, Mildred Bell, Audrey Tooley and Marjorie Oates had charge of a painted butterfly stall; Miss Kathleen Hall, Miss Jones, Miss Brown and Miss Clearhue dispensed ice cream, and Miss A. B. Cooke was kept busy reading the tea cups.

Afternoon tea was served in the Summer house, those in charge of the arrangements being Mrs. L. A. Genge, Mrs. Hineks, Mrs. Parker and Mrs. C. T. Cross. The afternoon was assisted by Miss Mabel Rhodes, conducted a button-guessing competition, and Mrs. J. H. Gillespie and Miss Clearhue collected the gate receipts.

ST. JOHN'S CHURCH GARDEN PARTY AT MRS. DRUMMOND-HAY'S

Under the auspices of the various branches of the Women's Auxiliary of St. John's Church, and through the kindness of Mr. and Mrs. C. Drummond-Hay, Gorge Road, a most successful garden fete was held yesterday afternoon in the beautiful water-front grounds surrounding their home, the various attractive booths being placed on the spacious lawn. The members of the Auxiliary responsible for the numerous attractions were as follows: Home cooking, Mrs. Moorehead and Mrs. Hallam; candy stall, Miss Bessie Archer and Miss Margaret McIntyre; sale of work, Miss Minnie Baker and Miss Isabelle Cropley; Aunt Sally, Miss Emily Warburton; table croquet, Miss Fuller; fish pond, Miss Winnie Helme and Miss Joyce Seammell; coconut shie, Mr. Harold Kellett; croquet, Mr. S. S. Peterson; ice cream and strawberries; Mrs. Baker and Miss Ella Harrison, and the famous Irish stew "Conn Brian," was present, foretelling the future.

The delicious tea which was served at daintily appointed tables on the veranda was under the management of Mrs. Richards, assisted by Mrs. Johnston, Mrs. Downer, Mrs. McDonald and Mrs. Huddleston, with Mrs. Kirk at the receipt of custom.

Towards the end of the afternoon's entertainment, Mr. Drummond-Hay presented the prizes to the fortunate winners of the numerous competitions, and accompanied each presentation with a humorous and appropriate speech, which created much amusement for those present. The pleasant event of the afternoon was suitably brought to a close by three cheers and a tiger for the host and hostess.

"Oh, Daddy, look what Mother went and put into the lunch basket — a whole whopping big package of Kellogg's 'WAXTITE' Corn Flakes! Daddy, I believe I can eat just about twice as much as you do — my, how I love Kellogg's 'WAXTITE'!"

Time to stop eating heavy food!

Kellogg's WAXTITE CORN FLAKES

wonderful for the whole family

Nature rebels against heavy foods in warm weather. Much illness in summer is caused by overtaxing the stomach. Change your diet — and keep snappy in mind and muscle!

Kellogg's "WAXTITE" Corn Flakes with cold milk and fresh fruit are wonderful for the hot days — for breakfast, for lunch, for supper or for "snacks." They digest without taxing the stomach and supply the nourishment the body needs.

For children, for the workers and for the aged there is no more delicious, sustaining summer food than Kellogg's "WAXTITE" Corn Flakes.

The One Unwanted

By RUBY M. AYRES

INSTALMENT No. 30

I suppose it was just love for him, arguing with the bitterness of my pride, but the thought made me rub my head with a little stifled breath.

That was true enough. He had never been paid off the mortgage. It had never been paid off till Mr. Sheller had arranged for it to be done with my money.

Before that Mark had been quite prepared to sell the farm and to leave the country as Mrs. Alberty herself had told me. What, then, was the real truth?

I rose and turned on the light. My cheeks were burning and my nerves felt all jumpy. Was I such a weakling that I still trembled at the thought of him and the memory of his eyes?

"I hate him—I hate him!" I said the words aloud in the quiet room as I dressed for dinner. All the evening I did my best to be kind to Lionel. I tried to whip myself of the belief that I really did love him.

"You've never been so sweet to me before," Lionel said when for a few minutes we were alone before he said good night, and my eyes fell in shame as I realized what a hollow pretence it all was and how empty my heart felt.

"It's good-bye for a little" while then, he said wistfully. "Till our wedding day—and then, I never good-bye again, Sally."

There was something so unconsciously pathetic in his voice that I had to laugh to keep back my own tears.

"And before long you'll be inventing excuses to say good-bye to me so that you can stay out late," I said flippantly. "All husbands do when the first novelty has worn off."

But he would not take me seriously, and the last look I had of him as he went away was the little smile in his eyes.

Only one more day now! Was I utterly mad that deep down in my heart there was still a hope that something might happen to prevent my wedding even at the eleventh hour?

I woke in the morning to pouring rain and a grey sky. The maid who drew the blinds and brought me tea and letters looked at me commiseratingly.

"Let's hope for a better day to-morrow, miss," she said kindly. "What does the weather matter?" I asked. "It's got to rain sometime or other," I suppose.

I took up the pile of letters on my tray, but was not sufficiently interested to read any of them till I came to one which was addressed in Mrs. Alberty's hand.

I had meant to burn all further communications from her unread, but the temptation was too strong, and I cut open the well-gummed-down flap with my teaspoon.

And after the first glance I sat up amongst the pillows with a quickened heart-beat for the contents were not intended for me. The short note in her writing began:

"DEAR MR. MARK:—There was a letter for you at the Gable Farm this morning, which I enclose, as you wished me to, hoping you are well. Alberty sends his best respects, and the same from me."

"Yours obediently,"

"MRS. ALBERTY."

And at the bottom she had written carefully, "Mark Anderson, Esq., and then the name of an hotel in Kensington, where he was evidently staying."

I lay back and closed my eyes. It was fate, I told myself, wildly, and then I laughed. Fate had no interest in me. It was just Mrs. Alberty's carelessness that had inadvertently put these letters into the wrong envelope, and of course Mark must have got the letter intended for me! . . . Perhaps even now he was reading it at the hotel, which was but a short walk away.

I dressed mechanically. I never opened any of the other letters, and later in the day I saw then all lying on my dressing table just as the maid had left them there.

I stayed in all the morning; people came, and telegrams, and more presents and I wrote notes and answered the telephone, and was kissed and congratulated, while all the time I felt as if I were waiting for something important to happen—something that would change the whole course of my life.

"What's the matter with you?" Winnie asked me once. "You look as if you're waiting in your sleep."

"Do I? Perhaps I am . . . oh, no! another note surely!" I added wearily as one of the maids came into the room with a note on a tray.

I made a grimace as I took it up; then all the blood in my body seemed to rush to my heart as I recognized Mark's writing.

I tore the envelope open—but there was nothing in it except the letter from Mrs. Alberty, which had come to him by mistake—not a word or a line.

"Who is it from?" Winnie asked inquisitively, but I walked out of the room without answering.

Was this the something important for which I had seemed to be waiting all day? If so, I had waited in vain.

Mother had wanted a dinner party that night, but I had dissuaded her. "There will be quite enough fuss and nonsense to-morrow," I said. "Surely it's my wedding. I might be allowed to do as I like."

She had given in reluctantly, but after that letter came from Mark I found myself wishing I had let her do as she wanted. It would have been better than a quiet evening, with only my thoughts for company.

Mark Anderson and I had driven through the country lanes, or skated together in the magic silence, and those memories seemed to rise up like living things and take me by the throat.

I was deliberately setting out to ruin the whole of my life by my marriage; I was seeking desperately for happiness in a road where I could never hope to find it.

"A lie which is half the truth." The words came to me again, and the torturing desire to know what Mark had meant by them seared my heart like a flame.

If only I knew, I felt that I could be contented. I was not too late yet! Only after to-morrow will it be too late—to-night you are still free."

I dropped the blind and stood with my hands pressed against my eyes. I thought I cannot remember how it happened, I found myself out in the night, bareheaded and in my thin shoes, running along the wet, deserted pathway in the moonlight.

I think I must have been a little mad, though all day long I had acted a part and done the things people had expected of me.

But now, out in the night everything was forgotten except that somewhere close at hand was the man I loved, and that I was going to him. Headless of what I had already suffered at his hands, blinded by the strength of my own desire, and to everything that night again lie in store for me.

I think I lost my way twice. I remember asking a cabman where the L. Hotel was and the curious way in which he looked at me.

"Shall I drive you there, miss?" he asked; and I said, "I haven't got any money."

And when he told me about five minutes' walk, I went on mechanically, though I was cold and shivering and my slippers were wet through.

I found it at last, and asked the commissionaire at the door if a Mr. Mark Anderson was staying there. I would not give my own name, and he went away reluctantly. It was not a very big hotel; but the lounge seemed to be crowded with people, who all stared at me as I went in and sat down, while the man went to find out if Mark was there.

"He'll be out," I told myself. "Of course, he'll be out, and he needs a bit of my emotion saving the other way and I hoped with all my heart that I should not see him. I began to tremble from head to foot at what I had done, and I remember afresh all he had made me suffer, and I had risen to run away when the commissionaire came back."

"Mr. Anderson is in, Miss. He asked what name, but I said you would not give one, and will you please come this way to the drawing room."

The drawing room was the stiff sort of room that it usually is in London hotels, and to-night, fortunately for me, it was empty. It was very badly lit, but there was a fire burning, and I went over to it and tried to warm my hands. My head felt curiously light, almost as if I was nervous, and my breath came in little frightened gasps.

The man went away and it seemed—oh, a lifetime before I heard a step in the hall outside, and some one in the door—and then some one in the room. I stood shaking from head to foot.

Then I heard Mark catch his breath with a harsh sound, and I turned slowly and met his eyes across the ugly room.

GAINS 15 POUNDS AND FEELS LIKE NEW PERSON

Vancouver Woman Declares Her Work Is Easy Since Tanlac Entirely Overcome Stomach Trouble Which Had Caused Her Untold Suffering

"I have gained fifteen pounds since taking Tanlac and now feel like a new person," said Mrs. David H. Morrow, 74 41st Avenue, Vancouver, B.C.

"I had the 'flu,' which left me badly run down, and as I had suffered from stomach trouble for a year my condition was indeed bad. My appetite was gone, and the little I ate made gas form and press against my heart, which would palpitate dreadfully, and I had a choking sensation in my throat and chest. Pains in my back were so intense I could hardly stoop over. I had splitting headaches nearly all the time, and it was only with the greatest effort that I could do my housework."

"But Tanlac started me to improving right away. I now have an excellent appetite, eat anything I want, and all my pains have left me. My housework is very easy now, and I am only too glad to recommend Tanlac to others."

Tanlac is sold by all good druggists.

SUCH PAINS AS THIS WOMAN HAD

Two Months could not turn in Bed Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Finally Restored Health

Seattle, Washington.—"I had dragging pains first and could not stand on my feet, then I had chills and fever and such pains in my right side and a hard lump there. I could not turn myself in bed and could not sleep. I was this way for over two months, trying everything any one told me, until my sister brought me a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I took it regularly until all the hard pains had left me and I was able to be up and to do my work again. The hard lump left my side and I feel splendid in all ways. I know of many women it has helped."—Mrs. G. R. HARRIS, 4640 Oran St., Seattle, Wash.

This is another case where Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound brought results after "trying everything any one told me" had failed.

DR. MORRIS THOMAS IS PRESIDENT

Y. M. C. A. Directors Choose Officers for Year

The Board of Directors of the Young Men's Christian Association has organized for the ensuing year with the selection of the following officers:

President—Dr. Morris W. Thomas.
Vice-President—Reginald T. Cheve.
Secretary—John G. MacFarlane.
Treasurer—J. W. Spencer (re-elected).

Chairman of Executive—George McGregor.
After three consecutive years of indefatigable service as president of the "Y," George McGregor has retired from the position of presiding officer, which made such large demands upon his time.

Dr. Thomas, the new president, has been a very energetic worker in the Y. M. C. A., and is solicitous that the association should function efficiently in all departments of its work. For two years he has been the enthusiastic chairman of the physical work committee of the "Y."

The directors feel that they have chosen the right man to lead them. Dr. Thomas is highly esteemed in his profession, and is at present the honorary secretary of the Victoria Medical Society.

The above named officers will associate with themselves a large number of members who will be organized into committees to promote the various features of the Y. M. C. A. programme.

SAYS CONFIDENCE VIOLATED BY ACT

Reeve Watson Refers to Breach of Confidence in News Gathering

Before closing business last night Reeve Watson asked the Saanich Council to consider what he termed a breach of confidence by the Press, at the last meeting of the Council, in publishing a report of the cemetery discussions.

"I think this Council should do something about this," he said. Councillor McWilliam agreed, "I think something is coming to this Council by the reporter concerned. Certainly matter asked to be kept confidential appeared in the paper the next morning."

Councillor Macdonald considered Alderman Hayward's authorized statement made the matter of no moment, whereupon Reeve Watson asserted, "the objectionable course of getting the information released by another source makes the action all the more contemptible."

Councillor Horner agreed in mild disapproval, while Councillor Dooley remarked, "nothing being forthcoming, I move we adjourn." Councillor McWilliam asked if a statement by the pressmen would be acceptable, Reeve Watson retorted, "I may have to take a course I have never favored to preserve secrecy of essential business."

Earlier in the evening a letter with unpleasant statements was brought before the Council by the Reeve with the remark, "I have here a letter I shall not read save in privacy," and cleared the room.

The Reeve's comment had no reference to any member of The Times' staff.

ANOTHER ANGLE TO RACING ISSUE

Oak Bay Council Is Also Anxious to Clarify Situation

While the City Council has shown a fluctuating policy on the general principle of race meetings at the Willows, in the case where gambling is permitted by any recognized system, the situation is complicated by the fact that the area is under the control of Oak Bay municipality.

The district councillors have always found it somewhat difficult to control the element of track followers, which was particularly noticeable last year, and which moved direct from here to Tia Juana.

The statements which have been made recently in the present controversy have added to the spirit of uncertainty about the value of the meetings, and the subject has now received the attention of the Oak Bay councillors in an informal manner.

They propose to deal with the subject in the near future, in the light both of police supervision, and of the attitude to be adopted to the lessees of the Willows Park from the City Council.

It has been suggested by some local lawyers that a municipal council has considerable latitude on the question, and could even get to the extent of a veto if it desired to establish regulation to be observed.

This view is probably subject to argument in case action of a restrictive kind should be taken.

Glaxo

Glaxo Saves Baby Lives

Every year when the hot weather comes along thousands of Babies die because impure and tainted milk has laid them open to the attacks of that most deadly complaint—"summer diarrhoea."

Experience in England has proved the life-saving power of Glaxo; for example, in 1911 there was a terrible epidemic of "summer diarrhoea" and Babies died on all sides, but nearly all the Glaxo Babies escaped. The Medical Officer of Health for Rotherham, England, in his Annual Report, says:—

"During the month of September 240 Babies under one year were fed on Glaxo and only one died. This gives an infant mortality rate of 4 per 1,000 births. Amongst the remainder not fed on Glaxo (about 160), 37 died, which yields an infant mortality rate of 232 per 1,000 births."

Guard your Baby against summer dangers by giving him the milk that is safe, Glaxo, the Super-Milk, the milk that has saved thousands of Baby lives.

MORE FREQUENT SAILINGS NOW BY EMPERESS LINERS

R.M.S. Empress of Canada Inaugurates Semi-Monthly Sailings to Far East

On her initial outward voyage in the trans-Pacific service of the Canadian Pacific Steamships, Ltd., the liner Empress of Canada, Capt. A. J. Bailey, R. N. R., will sail from Pier 2, Bithel Dock, at 8 o'clock, local time, to-morrow morning. According to information received to-day by L. D. Chatham, district passenger agent Canadian Pacific Railway.

The ship is posted to sail from Pier 2, Vancouver, at midnight, and is expected alongside here at 7 a. m. to-morrow, local time.

The Empress of Canada is taking out 600 passengers and a full cargo. With the departure of the Empress of Canada the new trans-Pacific schedule of the Canadian Pacific Steamships, Ltd., becomes effective giving semi-monthly sailings to the Orient.

Prominent Chinese.

Among the saloon passengers sailing to-morrow by the Empress of Canada will be Ho Kom Tong, manager of the Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corporation, and Dr. Chin Lin Woo, who has been diplomatic representative of the Peking Government in Peru, Chile, Ecuador, Argentina, Colombia and Bolivia for eight years.

These prominent Chinese are of the opinion that the political outlook in China is brighter to-day than it has been for many years.

"If the present move towards a united China is successful my country will startle the world with its development during the next three years," says Ho Kom Tong. "From the news which reaches me from China I believe that the North and South are being brought together." His opinion is concurred in by Dr. Woo.

Ho Kom Tong arrived in America a month ago and has been visiting the principal cities in the United States. He is a member of the Hongkong Chamber of Commerce, owner of a fleet of coastwise vessels and a contractor on a large scale. His trip has merely been one of observation, he states.

Dr. Woo is returning to China after having resigned his position in South America. It is nearly nine years since he saw China and he is taking his family of seven children to see the land of their fathers for the first time. With him travels an American tutor, who will be responsible for the education of the Woo children. Already they speak English, Spanish and French, and their education will proceed along western lines until they are old enough to go to either American or European universities.

AERIAL MAIL CONTRACT LET

Eddie Hubbard Will Continue to Carry Mails Between Victoria and Seattle

Empress of Canada To-morrow First Ship Under New Contract

Seattle, June 29.—Seattle postal officials yesterday received advice from Washington that the contract had been let for carrying mail by aeroplane between Seattle and Victoria, B. C., for the next fiscal year beginning July 1. The telegram did not mention to whom the contract had been awarded, but it is taken for granted that it will go to Eddie Hubbard, present pilot of the air route as no other person is known to have been in the running.

The telegram authorized Hubbard to make a trip on July 1 to meet the Empress of Canada at Victoria. This will be the first trip during the new year.

MAURETANIA STILL MAKING RECORDS

Cunarder Cut 20 Minutes Off Her Best Time on Her Last Atlantic Trip

On her last voyage from Cherbourg to New York the Cunarder liner Mauretania, Capt. Rostron, completed the trip from the French port to the Hudson in 5 days, 9 hours and 39 minutes, breaking her own world's record for fast time in crossing the Atlantic to the westward by just 20 minutes. The Mauretania's average speed for the voyage of 3,197 miles was 24.68 knots per hour. The best day's run was 629 miles. The liner's record for a full day's run is 676 miles.

The Mauretania holds the eastward record for the trip to Cherbourg, 5 days, 8 hours and 10 minutes, made on her last trip June 6 from New York.

For an entire trip across the Atlantic, the Mauretania has averaged 26.06 knots per hour and in a spurt of several hours recorded 27.47 knots per hour.

The Mauretania was reconditioned as an oil burner last winter.

S. S. Montcalm Resumes After Completing Repairs

Montreal, June 30.—What is believed to be the largest list of cabin passengers ever carried from this port by any steamship, will leave for England to-day on the Canadian Pacific liner Montcalm. Exact figures could not be ascertained to-night, but Canadian Pacific Railway officials stated that she would carry more than 600 cabin and 300 third-class passengers. The largest previous cabin passenger list was taken out on June 16 by the White Star-Dominion liner Regina, which left with a total of 567.

News from the Ocean Lanes

The "National" Link between the West Indies and Canada

Between May 7 and June 4, this year, the cargo liners of the Canadian Government Merchant Marine plying between Canadian Atlantic ports and Barbados, Trinidad and Demarara, brought to Montreal, 19,624 tons of sugar and molasses. On June 9 the "Canadian Coaster" cleared from Barbados, and on June 15 the "Canadian Navigator" was loading there. These two ships had 7,000 tons of similar cargo for the same Canadian port. The ship shown here is the "Canadian Runner" which arrived at Montreal on the 31st of May with 3,760 tons.

The two scenes of activity in Barbados indicate the picturesque quality of everyday life in that tropical possession of Britain. The port of Bridgetown is indeed a busy place, and the wind-power sugar mill harmonizes perfectly with the cane-laden cart and the slow-moving oxen. Some say the molasses from Barbados is just a little richer than that from other places because the old mills do not extract as much of the juice from the canes as more modern processes do.

TITAN FIGURES IN SHIP CONTROVERSY

Question Raised as to Whether Vessel May Ignore S.O.S. Signal

London, June 29.—The whole problem of whether the S. O. S. call at sea is a sacred obligation which it is the duty of all ships within reasonable distance to answer, was opened by a letter of Alfred Holt & Co., Liverpool shipowners, in response to an accusation that the vessel, the Titan, heard a call of the Egypt, sunk off Ushant, but refused to answer.

The company denies the Egypt's call was received, but says if it had been their captain, under regulations, could not have answered it, and follows this with a more sweeping statement that: "We demand altogether to the proposition that it is necessary the duty of a vessel to proceed to the assistance of another which has met with disaster in a fog."

As to why the Titan could not have answered the Egypt's call, the company says that their captain's all hands orders never in bad weather to answer a course which brings them nearer than forty miles of Ushant and even in clear weather never to approach the dangerous banks nearer than twenty miles.

Additional points are cited by the company as being against the rendering of assistance to an S. O. S. call in the fog area.

It is certainly doubtful to conceive of anything more dangerous than several vessels proceeding on converging courses in a fog, with the sense that early arrival at scene of disaster is a matter of moment. Such operation is far more likely to increase than diminish the loss of life and property.

In conclusion the letter asks: "If in response to an S. O. S. message the master of the ship elects to take grave risk to the safety of his ship and the persons and property on board, and unfortunately in doing so incurs disaster, who is to pay for this?"

The S. S. Titan was formerly operated in the trans-Pacific trade out of Victoria, and is well known on the Pacific coast.

BIG SILK CARGO ON AFRICA MARU

O.S.K. Ship in Port To-day Carried Over 3,000 Bales

Over 2,900 bales of raw silk formed a valuable part of the cargo reaching port to-day by the Osaka Shosen Kaisha liner Africa Maru. Another large consignment of freight on the Japanese line consisted of Chinese rice. The Africa Maru was fourteen days crossing from Yokohama, and Capt. K. Tashiro reported an excellent passage. Some fog was encountered after leaving Yokohama, but the weather was fine during the latter stage. The ship reached quarantine at 4:25 a. m. and made fast at Pier 2 at 4:10 a. m., standard time.

S. Hashimoto, O.S.K. agent at Tacoma, accompanied by his wife, was a passenger by the Africa Maru. He left last March on a holiday tour and is now returning to resume his duties at Tacoma. Professor John Swift, of the Tokyo University, arrived from Yokohama by the Africa Maru and will spend a short time in Victoria. Gilbert Haring, of the American Baptist Missionary Society, is on furlough after spending five years in Japan. He is en route to Buffalo, accompanied by his wife and family. Mrs. Nora Langford and her son and daughter are bound from Japan to New Point, Ind.

The Africa Maru carried three cabin and ninety steerage passengers for Victoria, and thirty-one cabin and 123 steerage for Seattle. The Africa Maru's cargo was distributed as follows: For Victoria, 45 tons; for Vancouver, 427 tons; for Tacoma, 1,983 tons; for Seattle, 1,934 tons.

After discharging here the Japanese liner cleared about noon for Seattle via Port Townsend.

CARMARTHENSIRE IS NOW AT SAN FRANCISCO

The British steamship Carmarthenshire, of the Royal Mail Steam Packet Company, arrived at San Francisco yesterday bound from Liverpool and Rotterdam for Victoria and Vancouver. The Carmarthenshire is expected to arrive here about July 6.

METHVEN IS NOW ON THE ATLANTIC

C.P.S.S. Freighter Transferred from Pacific Trade to Other Routes

The freighter Methven, which was operated formerly in the trans-Pacific service by the Canadian Pacific Steamships, Ltd., is reported arriving on the Atlantic Coast. The Methven, which had an interesting trip from the Pacific to the Atlantic, sailed from Hongkong April 3.

Her first stop was Iloilo, Philippine Islands. Arriving at that port on April 7, she loaded 5,000 tons of sugar; she arrived at Singapore on April 14, loaded 1,500 tons of rubber, spices, tinned pineapples, etc., and left Singapore on April 15. On May 18, on her way to the Red Sea, she passed the new Empress of Canada, bound for Hongkong on her maiden trip from Falmouth to augment the Pacific fleet of the Canadian Pacific. The Methven arrived at Gibraltar May 26 and at New York on June 9, where she discharged 1,500 tons of general cargo, and then proceeded to Philadelphia. After discharging 3,000 tons of sugar there she will proceed to Hampton Roads to bunker, thence to Jamaica, where she will load a full cargo of sugar and general goods for Montreal.

The Methven is commanded by Lieutenant-Commander H. James, R.D., Royal Naval Reserve. He holds a good war service record and, prior to getting the command of the Methven, he was first officer of the Empress of Asia, and made two trips on her to the Orient, and on February 12, 1920, was appointed to command the SS. Methven, in which capacity he is still serving. He holds the 1914-1915 Star, the British War Medal, the Victory Medal and the Royal Naval Reserve Officer's Decoration.

The other officers of the Methven have fine war records. J. Bisset Smith, chief officer, served on H.M.S. Louvain and Implacable, 1915-1919; John Hargreaves, first officer, in command of mine sweeping and Robert Wherry, second officer, served with the 26th Battalion, C.E.F.; A. J. Tullis, Royal Navy, from August 3, 1914, to March, 1919; and D. Cowper, chief engineer, served throughout the war in cruiser and transport service.

LINER NILE IS DUE ON THURSDAY

China Mail Boat Bringing Party of Shriners Here from Honolulu

Bringing a large party of Shriners who will spend two days in the city, the steamship Nile, of the China Mail Steamship Company, is expected to arrive here next Thursday from Honolulu.

The Nile is now on her way here from the Hawaiian Islands and is scheduled to arrive July 6.

The ship will berth at the Rithet Pier and will remain alongside for two days to permit the Shrine visitors to become acquainted with Victoria and her citizens.

When she arrives the Nile will take aboard sufficient coal to take her back to San Francisco, from which port she first set out on her triangular cruise.

The coal will be supplied by the Canadian Collieries, Ltd., and will be barged down from Union Bay and stowed in the ship's bunkers at the pier here.

TEN SAILERS ARE HEADED FOR SOUND

Seattle, June 29.—Ten sailing vessels are reported en route to Puget Sound from various ports to load lumber.

From Shanghai the barquentines Alicia Havistide and Anne Comyn have sailed. Both are former Shipping Board wood hulls which have made several passages since being put under canvas. From the Hawaiian Islands will come the schooners Helene, Alice Cooke, Charles F. Crocker and Camano, and the barquentine Mary Winkelman. Now en route from San Francisco are the schooners Commodore and Annie M. Campbell and the barquentine Monitor.

DURANT SIX NOW ON LOCAL MARKET

Atkinson Motor Co. Secure Attractive Agency

The Durant Six is one of the new cars recently appearing in the local automobile market which has created a great deal of interest. Many people have heard of the Durant, which has been one of the most popular cars in the United States, but it is comparatively recently that the flood of the Durant factory production has reached British Columbia.

The demand has been very keen and the supply none too large to accommodate it. Local representatives explain: The Atkinson Motor Company, Limited, corner of Vancouver and Collinson Streets, has been appointed local distributor, and Charles W. Lovell, well-known in Victoria, has been named sales manager for the Durant.

G. W. Pinner, distributor for British Columbia, was in the city this week and spent a few days conferring with the Atkinson Motor people on plans for a summer campaign. "We expect the Durant to be just as popular in Victoria as it has proved to be in every other city in Canada and the United States," said Mr. Pinner, who explained that the Durant Four has been manufactured in Toronto, Canada, for some time, and it is now the intention to also turn out the new Sixes in Toronto factory also.

By next September, Durant will be turning out a Canadian Six which will appeal to the Canadian motorists.

It is interesting to note that Frank Lind, of the Canadian Western Motorist Magazine, Vancouver, was the first to purchase a Durant in British Columbia. Mr. Lind knows everything about automobiles and the fact that he chose a Durant and has enjoyed every satisfaction with it since he purchased it is taken by the Durant distributors to be one of the best kind of recommendations.

LEE HIGHWAY TO BE ADVANCED

Seek Coast to Coast Route via Southern States

In order to make possible an uninterrupted transcontinental trip by automobile the American Automobile Association is co-operating in a programme for the speedy completion of all unfinished sections of the Lee Highway. It is hoped to make coast-to-coast motoring a year round possibility. The Federal Government, through the Bureau of Public Roads, and the states of Virginia, Tennessee, Arkansas, Oklahoma, Texas, New Mexico, Arizona and California, through their road departments, are now engaged in the selection of the next step is to fix the route from Washington, D. C. to San Diego, Calif.

Already the route has been selected from Washington in a southwest diagonal down the valleys of Virginia and Tennessee, through Roanoke, Bristol and Knoxville to Chattanooga. The next step is to fix the route from Chattanooga to San Diego.

The new highway will bear the name of the "Southern" chief, Robert E. Lee. Each state is to designate it and incorporate it into the interstate highway system which is to be built under the new Federal aid road act.

According to Dr. S. M. Johnson, director general of the Lee Highway Association, it is expected to complete the transcontinental road within the next three years. It will be a modern highway through many of the most picturesque sections of the country.

"FLIVVERBOOB" NOW OFFICIAL NAME FOR DEMON MOTORIST

New York, June 29. — He is a flivverboob, the motorist who causes other motorists and all pedestrians to wish him nothing but demerol.

The American Automobile Association has just chosen that name, among thousands submitted in a contest to give a label to the gasoline-brother of the day-walker. The prize of $25 has been awarded to F. B. Simpson, of Cedar Rapids, Ia.

This announcement, made yesterday, also contained the information that among many of the suggestions were appellations that steeled in the judges' hands.

CARAVAN TRIP CAUSES INTEREST

Unique Type of Car Visits Island and New Ferry Service Makes Trip Possible

The property of John DeNeul and Louis Bodum, of Long Beach, California, an ingeniously fitted car, appropriately called the "Motor Inn" is to be seen these days at the City Automobile Park at the wharves.

The car is known as a Reo Speedwagon, with the house body fitted on making a roomy arrangement for camping. Able to heat five, running water, a folding wardrobe, and an electric cigar lighter on the dashboard are but a few of the novelties in the car. The party intends to complete a tour of 10,000 miles before returning to their homes in Long Beach.

One of the great features of the trip is that it was only made possible for them to come to Vancouver Island through the inauguration of the Victoria-Admiralty motor car ferry because the height of their traveling home is such that none of the hitherto prevailing ferry services was capable of carrying such a motor car.

The visitors are delighted with all they have seen on Vancouver Island, and especially the treatment they have received in Victoria. They lost no opportunity while here of taking in all the points of interest, and it is safe to say that they will return to Victoria on the first possible occasion.

The pair will be on the go for four months, and they intend to amble along in their own good time. Before returning to Long Beach they will visit Yellowstone Park and they will follow the Yellowstone Trail as far as South Dakota, Minnesota and Iowa.

The car was bound north from Los Angeles, and it was when it reached Portland that the travelers heard about the Victoria-Admiralty ferry. Having heard so much about the attractions of Vancouver Island, they decided that they would take advantage of the new ferry service.

"You should advertise the fact that your new ferry service will carry any car of any make or size," said Mr. DeNeul.

The space in the inside of the body is conserved in ingenious fashion. At the rear end of the car are two beds, arranged Pullman style, one above the other. The upper one fastens back against the wall when in use. The beds are strapped down to the beds to prevent disarrangement during travel. There is storage space under the lower bed, which lifts up. The rear half of the "room" can be separated from the other half by curtains. On the right hand side, looking toward the rear, there is what Mr. DeNeul jocularly terms the grandfather clock. It is a tall wardrobe on the door of which there is a small shelf to which is attached a mahogany clock, which is hinged so that it can be tilted forward for rear window. Down the centre of the door is a strip of wood giving a paneled effect. The whole wardrobe door is hinged at the bottom instead of the side, and when swung outward and down it becomes a table, the outer end being supported by a leg which is none other than the centre strip, which also is hinged. This table will seat five people, two sitting on the lower bed, which serves as a couch, a third utilizing a locker which is situated against the left wall and is upholstered on top, while two folding chairs can be used on the other side of the table.

Three million cars and trucks are owned on farms.

Motor cars carry annually six times as many passengers as the steam railroads.

Motor trucks carry 1,420,000,000 tons of freight annually, or $7 per cent as much as the railroads.

Over 125,000 suburban home owners depend chiefly on motor transportation.

Out of the great unknown one day there landed in Corralle from a fruit steamer a stranger. He smilingly answered to the name of Dicky Maloney, and everybody cheered up at the sight of him. His wonderful red hair was the delight of the natives. Then there was a pretty senorita. Dicky was giving the city the once over, and found her. How he became the most popular chap in the community, incurred the jealous hatred of the military government, was sentenced to death, escaped and is found to be the long-lost son of the deeply mourned ex-ruler, are details of an O'Henry story. It forms the basis for the new Earle Williams feature now being filmed by Vitagraph. Patsy Ruth Miller, "the most perfect brunette on the screen," plays opposite Williams in the picture, which is destined to be one of the most popular of this year's Vitagraph releases.

FREE LEGAL ADVICE FOR MEMBERS

Victoria Automobile Club Offers Definite Benefit to Members

To the many general benefits enjoyed by motorists through the activities of the Victoria Automobile Club, the members are to have added now the distinct personal benefit of free legal advice. Arrangements have been made by the directors for this service and already some have availed themselves of its provisions. It has been found that motorists can require advice in connection with the operation of cars, and in many cases refrain from consulting a lawyer due sometimes to the expense involved and in other cases because the matter does not appear to them sufficiently serious. By this co-operative method, however, the members of the Victoria Club are now free to appeal to the club lawyer for any advice they may need. Merely the showing of the membership card will be sufficient to secure this service.

This plan has proved very successful in other districts, nearly every club having its own attorney and with some of the larger clubs the service is extended to other districts as well. With this new benefit added it is expected that the club will join the club in ever increasing numbers.

CROSSLEY FOUR WINS MUCH COMMENT

English Car Arrives at Plimley's and Attracts Many Inquiries

The English Crossley car being demonstrated by Plimley's has attracted much attention since its arrival early this week, the striking body design in smoke blue causing many inquiries.

Behind the nickel V-type radiator is located a four cylinder engine of remarkably clean design, with accessibility a feature. In accord with British practice, gasoline consumption is low, even for the economical four cylinder type engine.

The springing conforms to Hotchkiss design, with extra long rear equipment, giving excellent riding properties.

Upholstery and the metal fittings are up to the highest British standards, the car being quite distinctive from the somewhat stereotyped lines now marking American body designs. As to power, the light weight gives no trouble to the sweet running engine, which is rated at 19.7 horsepower under British measurements and delivers above 35 horsepower by standards used on this side of the Atlantic.

negotiated all the well known test hills of the district with an ease which surprised the passengers, and proved beyond a doubt that it is expected that a considerable demand will arise for the new arrival from discriminating residents.

HOW FAR DOES RADIO MUSIC REACH, IS QUERY

According to an executive of one of the companies most extensively interested in the new art of giving entertainment, instruction and news by means of the wireless telephone, one of the commonest of questions is: "Over how great a distance can this music be heard?"

"We all admit," said this experienced radio man, "that there is much we do not know about radio telephony, and the distances our concerts travel without becoming inaudible is one of them."

There is much the same situation in receiving wireless messages with this important difference—the distance at which messages are audible depends to a great extent on the sensitiveness of the receiving instrument. Because of this fact, a concert entirely inaudible on one receiving set might be very clearly heard by another.

For example, the concerts sent on from Newark, N.J., are quite plainly heard by some radio amateurs in Toronto, and not heard at all by others.

What part of the difference is due to the different "hook-ups" used, the degree of amplification employed and the sensitiveness of the phones, a great deal of it is in the batteries employed to supply current to the set.

Because of the great importance of the battery in this field, there have been special types of batteries built, which are as different from the ordinary automobile storage battery as the automobile battery is different from one used to supply current for the lighting of Pullman cars. One of these special radio batteries, known as the All-Rubber Battery, is the product of the Willard Storage Battery Company of Canada, Limited. This battery is entirely contained in a one-piece rubber case, which effectively prevents the leakage of current and therefore stops all ground noises. The insulators between the plates are of the well-known threaded rubber type, which permit each part of every plate to do an equal portion of the work of supplying current and thereby prevent what is known as "spotting" or the wearing out of one portion while the rest of the plate is in good condition. Because of these improvements and the consequent addition to quiet operation, the hearing range of a radio receiving set is considerably increased.

Trenton is one of the few cities in the United States that have a "joy-walking" ordinance.

Because of their sluggish action on rough roads, rusty springs will cause damage to the car and tires.

ELK HOTEL IS TO OPEN SATURDAY

Holiday makers seeking fresh haunts in which to find rest and recreation will be glad to know that the Elk Hotel, Comox, a well-known and popular hostelry of pre-war days, has been taken over by a new Victoria syndicate, and will open Saturday in readiness for the holiday season.

The hotel, which is delightfully situated, with a fine view of the sea and distant mountains, and flanked by the undulating meadows of the famous Comox dairy country, has been entirely redecorated and renovated, and the airy bedrooms, spacious dining-room, pleasant lounge, writing-room and smoking-room offer every modern comfort to its guests. Fishing, boating, bathing, tennis and the usual attractions of sea and countryside will in the near future be supplemented by the royal and ancient game, but owing to the late spring the new golf links are not yet ready for play, although their proximity will eventually be counted as one of the Elk Hotel's greatest attractions.

An excellent chef has been engaged, and the hotel is supplied with the freshest and richest of country produce. Although the hotel does not formally open until to-day several transient guests have already sought accommodations there, and have expressed themselves as delighted with this latest addition to Vancouver Island's many famous holiday resorts.

Seventy per cent of all cars in use were purchased at less than $1,000.

Ninety-four per cent of all cars in use were purchased at less than $2,000.

"I believe that the spread of the use of the automobile is going to do as much to teach one nation to another as any other agency on God's green footstool can ever hope to do."—Irvin S. Cobb.

ESQUIMALT SCHOOL CHOIR PLEASES

Notable Concert at Lampson Street; The Solists

There is always something fascinat- ing and agreeable in song and chorus by children. When properly trained in such matters as distinct- ness of enunciation, precision of at- tack, tonal colorings and true estab- lishment of culminating effects, nothing in music seems to express its power over the human heart more than vocal utterances from children in lyrical poems, carol, ditty or hymn. Such an example is the Esquimalt School Choir, consisting of thirty boys and girls. This choir has now attained to an enviable high position in the sphere of chorist organizations.

Capable Conductor.

In Frederick Waddington, the choir's instructor and conductor, very little is lost in all that appertains to good sound and resourceful de- liveries in well-selected numbers, and in his keenness and watchful- ness he readily gives of the best. In the evening in the choir as- sembly hall the recital proved the excellence of their clever rend- ings, in fact great strides have been made since last heard, particularly in the direction of tonal qualities and expressive results, as illustrated in the great master, Beethoven's "A Fragment and Adoration of Na- ture" in Schubert's beautiful "Hed- ges and Roses," and in Bach's superb chorale specimen "In Faith I Quiet Wait," the last meeting with such favor that a repetition had to be given. Two other numbers especially enjoyed were "Lullaby" (Brahms) for girls only, and the ever-popular "Old Folks at Home" for the boys only. Another delightful number was the folk song "The Shepherd and the Cuckoo."

Three well-known local artists gave of their valuable assistance. Mrs. Hollinrake-Brick, soprano; Drury Pryce, violinist, and Harry Charlesworth, pianist, all of whom are very popular with their audiences. On some former occasions eulogy has been issued from the music columns of The Times of Mrs. Brick's artistic singing, and again was there no mistaking the worth and the musical esteem in which she is held in the community from the enthusiastic plaudits freely bestowed upon her by those present.

She gave two numbers, one of which was the beautiful song "A Summer Night" (Grieging Thomas), a beautiful given, in which she was assisted by Mr. Pryce in a violin obligato. Mrs. Brick responded to the insistent recall with "Good Morning" and "A Perfect Day," in both of which the lovely quality of her voice in all its ranges was heard to great advan- tage.

Harry Charlesworth, besides giving one of his own compositions, which he explained, was inspired from tracks of birds which gathered in the trees at times when he practiced in an earlier period of his life, proved an excellent accompanist, ably per- forming this duty to the solists of the evening. Mr. Charlesworth also took the opportunity in a few happy remarks to congratulate Mr. Wad- dington upon the excellent work of his choir, and said "Good night" to the young boys and girls who knew how to appreciate the best in music. He was glad to see that the members of the choir, choir all sang as if they loved to sing.

Drury Pryce, as before mentioned, has played his way into the hearts of his hearers, and his playing was again flattering and sincere. He played last evening Kreisler's ar- rangement "Old Viennese Waltz" and the "Hunuskeke" by Dvorak, and had to include two extra numbers in "The Rosary" (Nevin) and "Mo- nents Musical" (Schubert). Miss Riddell, of the school staff, ably played the chorus accompaniments throughout.

The concert was in aid of the Friendly Help.

Linseed oil, mixed with a small amount of graphite, is recommended as a lubricant for door hinges and latches.

Showing the Wonderful Strides Our Country Has Taken in its Half Century under Confederation

Compiled by Frank Yeigh for The Victoria Daily Times.

CANADA'S BIBLE VERSE:—"HE SHALL HAVE DOMINION ALSO FROM SEA TO SEA, AND FROM THE RIVER UNTO THE ENDS OF THE EARTH." PSALM 72: 8.

AN ODE FOR THE CANADIAN CONFEDERACY.

Awake, my country, the hour of dreams is done!
Doubt not, nor dread the greatness of thy fate.
Thou' faint wouldst fear the keen, 'con- fronting sun.
And faint wouldst bid the morn of splendor wait:
Thou' dreamers, rapt in starry visions,
"Lo, yon thy future, yon thy faith, thy fame!"
And stretch vain hands to stars, thy fame is nigh.
Here in Canadian hearth, and home, and name:
This name which yet shall grow Till all the nations know
Us for a patriot people, heart and hand
Loyal to our native earth,—our own Canadian land!

—By Charles G. D. Roberts.

PROPHECIES OF THE LEADING FATHERS OF CONFEDERATION

GEORGE BROWN

For myself, I care not who gets the credit for this scheme—I believe it contains the best features of all the suggestions that have been made in the last ten years for the settlement of our troubles, and thankfulness that there were found men of position and influence in Canada who at a moment of serious crisis had nerve and patriotism enough to cast aside political partisanship, to banish personal considerations and unite for the accomplishment of a measure so fraught with advantage to their common country.

EMPIRE CONNECTION.—In 1867

Canada was a colony of the Empire; now an Overseas Dominion; then, "a millstone around the neck of the Motherland," in the opinion of some British statesmen; to-day, "the brightest gem in the British Crown," with a degree of self-government in keeping with her sense of nationhood.

EDUCATIONAL.—Canada has made immense strides in education since 1867, until there are 22 universities and 40 colleges, 1,873,899 attend public, technical and vocational schools, with 53,000 public school teachers. 72 millions was spent on education in 1919, an increase of over 500 per cent in ten years.

F

FORESTRY.—One of Canada's richest natural resources is its forests—the third largest in the world, in an area of 900,000 square miles. Production has steadily increased to $311,000,000 in 3,481 plants, and a thousand logging operations.

FUR INDUSTRY.—Canada has always realized on its fur wealth, through the Hudson's Bay and other companies. The value of 3,000,000 pelts in 1921 was over $10,000,000. Now, too, there are 600 fur farms—Canada's newest industry—producing $5,000,000 worth a year, chiefly in foxes.

FISHERIES.—Canada leads the world in the extent of its deep sea fisheries along three oceans. Only a few thousands were realized on this source of natural wealth in 1867; to-day it is 50 millions, and "we are only beginning to fish."

G

GAME.—Canada is increasingly discovering that it is a great game country. Since Confederation, many national parks and forest reserves have been set apart as game preserves as well, which are helping to prevent the extinction of wild life.

H

HARVESTS.—Canada's harvests have increased with the increase of population and acreage under cultivation, reaching, in 1921, a total yield of all kinds of field crops of a billion bushels, worth a billion dollars, and this with only ten per cent of the tillable areas under crop.

I

IRRIGATION, or "dry farming," was also unknown in 1867. Since then the C.P.R. alone has developed an area of 750,000 acres, at a cost of over $17,000,000 in Alberta, and, in addition, 650 smaller projects have been built, irrigating another hundred thousand acres.

INSURANCE.—Only a few life, fire and other companies did business in 1867; to-day, 152 fire and 56 life companies are doing a record business, with six millions of fire risk and $2,657,000,000 of life insurance in effect.

L

LABOR.—Labor unions were unknown in 1867; at end of 1920 there were nearly 3,000 with 373,842 members, out of 600,000 Canadian work- ers.

LIVE STOCK.—Canada had only four thousand head in 1867; in 1921 20,000,000 horses, cattle, sheep and swine, worth over a billion. The exports of animals and their products has increased from a trifle to $266,000,000 worth; live cattle shipments, in 1920, to 315,000, and a dead meat industry, in 32 plants, doing a business of $230,000,000.

LAND AREAS.—Of the 300 million acres fit for farming in Canada, only 60 million—20 per cent—are under crop, leaving 240 million for cultivation.

CANADA'S NEW COAT OF ARMS.

J

JUSTICE.—Canada's reputation for administration of justice is deservedly high. At Confederation a Supreme Court was set up for the Dominion, with provincial and county courts from which appeals may be made from the Supreme Court to the Privy Council of England.

K

KING, THE.—Canada's form of government as fixed by Confederation, heads up in the King, who is represented by a Governor-General. The Cabinet, members of the Privy Council for Canada, form the responsible advisory council of the King's representative; Parliament exercises legislative functions over the whole of Canada, with other functions for the Provincial Legislatures.

L

LABOR.—Labor unions were unknown in 1867; at end of 1920 there were nearly 3,000 with 373,842 members, out of 600,000 Canadian work- ers.

LIVE STOCK.—Canada had only four thousand head in 1867; in 1921 20,000,000 horses, cattle, sheep and swine, worth over a billion. The exports of animals and their products has increased from a trifle to $266,000,000 worth; live cattle shipments, in 1920, to 315,000, and a dead meat industry, in 32 plants, doing a business of $230,000,000.

Starting with the larva of the little mischievous fish, it was found that sea borne timbers were apt to be covered with the greenish yellow eggs of the teredo. As soon as the larva was born it developed little paddles called "cilia," and by this means made its way about in the water. It could rise or sink as pleasure dictated and soon found a choice piece of wood on body in heath?"

There was silence until one maiden held up her hand and replied: "Yes, teacher. Yer breakfast, yer dinner and yer supper."

"Do you still walk in your sleep, professor?"

Professor: "No, I take car fare to bed with me now."

HERE'S HOW TO MAKE IT. Jam listening in on radio concerts by evening with this radio receiver-instrument that cost me less than fifteen cents to make. It is made of two pieces of wood, one $\frac{3}{4}$ -inch by $\frac{5}{8}$ -inch, and the other $\frac{1}{2}$ -inch by $\frac{5}{8}$ -inch, by $\frac{5}{8}$ -inch. Join these two together with three screws in the manner shown in the drawing. Obtain two large size dress hooks and a piece of No. 22 enameled copper wire 3 inches long. Scrape the enamel from the ends of the wire and fasten one end at each dress hook. Fasten the dress hooks to Part C at points M and N, using cigar box nails or tacks. Connect the end of the No. 22 enameled copper wire which is to be wound around part E, to the other eye of the hook at N. Drive a cigar box nail or tack into the upper right-hand corner of part B at point D. Run the wire fastened to the N hook to the nail at D, and wind it around once or twice. Proceed to wind the wire, first removing the wax from the end, so that you will not have a hard under it each time you wind. Wind the wire around the loop as shown at E in the drawing. Twist the wire several times. Continue to wind on ten turns, and then on five turns each of the end of each series.

ough may be purchased for four instruments. Some of my boy friends who were making instruments bought a twenty-cent piece and split it into four chunks, and each boy contributed five cents.

Clamp the piece of crystal in the middle of the wire. Connect the aerial to A. Connect the ground wire to the dress hook at G. Connect the phones to the dress hooks at the two points labeled F.

Adjust the pin to the crystal and tune in by moving the switch contact from tap number one to tap number eight, stopping at the one switch gives the best result.

Is It the Weaker Sex Who Do the Courting?

Some Types of Men an Easy Mark for the Wily Arts of the Husband-Chaser: Pity, Jealousy, Pique, Powerful Incentives: "All Is Fair in Love and War" Is the Modern Maiden's Guiding Motto.

By STELLA WARD.

THE French say that in all marriages one loves and the other consents to be loved. Undoubtedly the happiest unions are those where the greater love is on the part of the husband. When not absolutely sure of his wife's affection, a man is less likely to tire of her, and is always spurred on by the thought of winning her completely. A man does not run for a street car after he has caught it, and so a wife of this type holds her own against all possible distractions and intruding rivals. It is surprising how many husbands have been won by sheer will power and determination on the part of their self-ordained life partners. A clever girl of course does not openly pursue a man. She knows that would doom her to failure, but she does plan a campaign and take strategic measures that frequently win success. The kind of man who is the easiest mark for matrimony is the good-hearted, easy-going, happy-go-lucky type. And when some nice girl with a head on her shoulders decides that Dick is just the man for her, she will marry him. A man does not run for a street car after he has caught it, and so a wife of this type holds her own against all possible distractions and intruding rivals. It is surprising how many husbands have been won by sheer will power and determination on the part of their self-ordained life partners. A clever girl of course does not openly pursue a man. She knows that would doom her to failure, but she does plan a campaign and take strategic measures that frequently win success. The kind of man who is the easiest mark for matrimony is the good-hearted, easy-going, happy-go-lucky type. And when some nice girl with a head on her shoulders decides that Dick is just the man for her, she will marry him.

One deep-thinking girl won an unusually attractive husband by using highly developed qualities of finesse and judgment. She was on the books in branch bank, where the amount of patronage had for the time rather ran ahead of the capacity of the staff. She was a good worker, and she was a good home with the rest of the girls there. What she did was to stay late after hours, and she used to do so until she had shown that she was a devoted and efficient worker. She was a good worker, and she was a good home with the rest of the girls there. What she did was to stay late after hours, and she used to do so until she had shown that she was a devoted and efficient worker. She was a good worker, and she was a good home with the rest of the girls there. What she did was to stay late after hours, and she used to do so until she had shown that she was a devoted and efficient worker.

And one night the fair Susanne took to weeping over a column that added up to a different total. She was hungry and cold—the heat having slackened down—so she sobbed, and what was more natural than to add up her total, the nice bachelor manager should do his best to comfort her. Susanne, the little sly puss, kissed away her grief, and by the time he deposited her at her own home they were engaged. She did not wait so long after that.

Of course, a man will often show strategy and adroitness in pursuing the girl of his choice, but that is not the case with the girl who is the recipient of attention, and possibly to keep the victory from being too easy she will even on the golf course. "All fair in love and war" was coined for men, but in this day of women's equal opportunities, it is becoming just as applicable to women.

Many matches are made by interested relatives who will show a photograph and brag about the absent bride. The Canadian's thought she would make it easy for him, seeing he felt too unworthy to declare himself. Therefore, one evening, in small voice she hardly knew, she asked him: "I feel sure you love me and are too shy to say so, but I just want you to know that your love is returned."

And the brute fixed a cold Scotch eye on her and replied: "I've been getting even with you, that's all. You spoil my chances with your sister, and this is my revenge. Good-bye." To the sound of a low moan from the floor, he took his departure for evermore.

THIS appointment was made by telephone. Yes, the pleasant voice said, she would gladly see me; but it must be after evening hours, and it would be well to call up before starting from home, for "I am the servant of the public, and am never sure of being in." Hear that? Servant of the public, is how the Doctor Wilhelm Quick describes himself to a stranger—a perfectly natural and unassuming description, and as one has heard from her patients, as truthful as George Washington himself. You may remember that Mrs. Wargrove had told us about Dr. Quick, when she called Dr. Wilhelm Quick, and of whom she thinks there is none like her in the heavens above or the earth beneath. It happened that Mrs. Jenner, Mrs. Wargrove's mother, was on the car as I was on the way to the doctor's. I told her where I was going. "You'll be glad you went," she said. "I never had a woman doctor myself—perhaps I'm rather old-fashioned. But I went with Mary the first time she saw Dr. Wilhelm, and have since taken Marjory to her. She's a fine doctor; and a very wise woman."

There were patients galore in the waiting-room. When my turn came I was taken upstairs to the doctor's study, and soon said something about Mrs. Wargrove. "A wonderful girl," was Dr. Wilhelm's remark. "She appreciates everything you tell her, and manages her baby perfectly. She would have made a great doctor—she would, indeed." A great doctor, then? "But she's doing something better. Perhaps she will give us a great doctor."

Listen to that, on top of the self-description above; and you have got the measure of an unselfish, public-spirited woman, even if she has medical learning, and still beyond anything which our grandmothers believed it decent for any feminine being to possess. Motherhood before medicine; medicine a mere adjunct to motherhood—there's a combination that makes a lot of theorizing about better babies look like ninepence.

The proportion of mother hearts devoted to medical minds is maybe smaller than the proportion of medical minds housed in masculine heads. But mothers have saved us from a thousand ills. Who can tell how much has been done for a disease-defeating humanity by the bristling and treacherous? Some day a great doctor may tell us the part which intuition, the twin sister of instinct, plays in the discoveries and applications of medical science. Even doctors may be too clever by half; I hadn't been five minutes in the presence of this little wisp of a woman before I got a new line on this possibility. Dr. Wilhelm Quick, partly because she is fair-haired, and does not seem to put the grey of her tresses into the front window, so to speak; and partly because her heart is everlastingly young, does not look more than two-thirds of her age. Fifty years? How she excited matrimony no person can guess. Maybe there's a story behind—a recurring sadness in the voice, seems to say there is. I haven't said that the flourishing quality of the Wargrove baby, and the mother's assurance that the way had been made plain and easy for her by Dr. Wilhelm Quick, had brought me in search of an expert philosophy of the infant as a social treasure.

"Oh," she laughed. "I'm not an expert; and never want to be regarded as one. Sometimes I think my professional being expected into premature senility. Will you excuse me a moment?"

The telephone was ringing; and one could hear it but not hear this. "Yes, Mrs. Shipwin. Poor little dear. A day like this is too hot for wool. Clothier according to the day. Silk will do, or cotton; and on very hot days one garment will be enough. Oh, no; I wouldn't wake her to make the change. Let her have her sleep out. Certainly, can me again, if she doesn't seem quite right, and I'll tell you what I think would be best. There's nothing to be alarmed about. We don't enjoy the heat ourselves very much, do we? You still have plenty for her? That's good. Only don't get worried or overheated. Give her lots of fresh air; no wool while the temperature is around where it is. Give her my love. Good-bye, Mrs. Shipwin."

"One of my mothers," Dr. Wilhelm commented, as she came back to her old-fashioned chair, which I bet, belonged to her grandmother. "But a little nervous about the responsibility of her first child. We were saying something about experts. Medical science is wonderful, and becomes more wonderful every day. I am as much fascinated by it as when I was teaching school to get money enough to become a doctor. But there is a temptation to exalt ourselves at nature's expense. The best we can do it seems to me, is to try humbly to be assistants of Nature, not her bosses. That is particularly true of obstetrics, and the care of infant children. You can't reduce everything to formulae, to a law of averages. Some doctors I know, it seems to me, make a great mistake there. They seem to think they are observing a law of averages when they are trying to reduce everything to a deadly uniformity. They forget that the more reliable average in any sector of life must allow for instances that are above and below the standard. Otherwise there could be no average. It is as foolish to reduce some things to an average as it is to mourn because some other things are not up to the average."

"For instance?" I suggested, hoping to get down to cases, and Dr. Quick quickly came to cases.

"Well, you have read, of course, that babies of a certain age should be of a certain weight—an application of the law of averages. But there are perfect human beings of less than average size, and perfect human beings of more than average size. Most of us are the products of much mingling of types, and in human beings, similar characteristics unexpectedly appear—among other things, even to a particularly eloquent sigh when she comes in on a hot day."

"What farmers call the throw-back," I said.

"Exactly. Sometimes large men and women have small children. Sometimes you see an unusually large child in a family of average size—haven't you noticed that?"

"This happens to be one in our house," I answered. "On my side of the house the men are usually above the average; but our women generally have been on the smaller side. But we have a girl who was five feet eight at thirteen. She climbed the stairs at five months, and weighed thirty pounds when she was six months old, and her mother had a six-foot sister. We have another daughter who, though she does not look a bit like my eldest sister, in many respects acts like her. They say I'm not a bit like my sister; but my daughter has some of the distinctions, even to a particularly eloquent sigh when she comes in on a hot day."

Calamitously Overweight.

THEN you will understand my point, which is that in rearing infants, a hundred facts and the possibilities of a thousand ancestors have to be taken into account," Dr. Quick continued. "You asked for a case. I'll give you one. Some time ago a wealthy man consulted me about his prospective first child. I found an abnormal condition, which made a Cæsarian operation imperative—it was the only way to save both lives. Everything passed off happily. The baby weighed nine pounds, and threw splendidly on nature's food. When it was four months old, visiting the mother, suggested weighing the baby. She had been schooled in the Expert school, and found the baby was a pound and a half above the proper weight for a child of that age. This was alarming, and she induced the mother to take the baby to her Expert. He said the child was too fat, and was getting nourishment too copiously, and too easily. He reduced the breast feeding to twice a day, and ordered a prepared buttermilk for it. When the child was at her mother's, the mother was to lie on her back, and the child be held so that it would have to swallow the milk to its stomach. I remarked: 'Great is the mystery of the Expert.' I ejaculated, wondering, 'What was coming next?'

"This happened a while; and then I was called in, not knowing what had happened. I found the child in a poor way—much thinner, and the blood was gone from it. When the parents told me the story I said I wasn't a bit sorry for them; but I was very sorry for the poor little lamb. 'Go on with your Expert,' I said, and when the baby is nearly dead, send for me.' As I had told the father four months before, the child was born with a Cæsarian operation would be necessary—did you know that the operation is so called because it is said that Julius Cæsar came into the world that way—he dispensed with the Expert, and let Nature alone henceforth, with natural results. You see, the mother is somewhat above the average in flesh, though very small-boned; and the father is a huge man. It was entirely natural that the child should be above the average as your own was. But the Expert, getting five dollars for each weekly visit, must find fault with Nature when Nature was in one of her best moods. The youngster's constitution might have been ruined, and a family's happiness with it."

"Of course, I believe in doing everything that experience can suggest for mothers and children. But do not believe in the propaganda of fear that is being carried on with our noble profession. There is a tendency to put so many 'Thou shalt' into women's minds, that they are in mortal dread when they should live in brightest hope—as little Mrs. Wargrove did. It is becoming the fashion to be fussy, which is worse than not being careful enough. Look at this idea of giving babies a doctored kind of buttermilk. Some Experts order a sort of whey; and you can find whey babies all around. Poor sickly little things."

"Some old-fashioned notions are pretty good, after all, then?" I suggested.

"So long as they are not worked to death. I suppose you were a binder, when you were an infant," the lady laughed. "I'm not an expert; and never want to be regarded as one. Sometimes I think my professional being expected into premature senility. Will you excuse me a moment?"

The telephone was ringing; and one could hear it but not hear this. "Yes, Mrs. Shipwin. Poor little dear. A day like this is too hot for wool. Clothier according to the day. Some Experts order a sort of whey; and you can find whey babies all around. Poor sickly little things."

"Some old-fashioned notions are pretty good, after all, then?" I suggested.

"So long as they are not worked to death. I suppose you were a binder, when you were an infant," the lady laughed. "I'm not an expert; and never want to be regarded as one. Sometimes I think my professional being expected into premature senility. Will you excuse me a moment?"

laughed. "I'm not an expert; and never want to be regarded as one. Sometimes I think my professional being expected into premature senility. Will you excuse me a moment?"

The telephone was ringing; and one could hear it but not hear this. "Yes, Mrs. Shipwin. Poor little dear. A day like this is too hot for wool. Clothier according to the day. Silk will do, or cotton; and on very hot days one garment will be enough. Oh, no; I wouldn't wake her to make the change. Let her have her sleep out. Certainly, can me again, if she doesn't seem quite right, and I'll tell you what I think would be best. There's nothing to be alarmed about. We don't enjoy the heat ourselves very much, do we? You still have plenty for her? That's good. Only don't get worried or overheated. Give her lots of fresh air; no wool while the temperature is around where it is. Give her my love. Good-bye, Mrs. Shipwin."

"One of my mothers," Dr. Wilhelm commented, as she came back to her old-fashioned chair, which I bet, belonged to her grandmother. "But a little nervous about the responsibility of her first child. We were saying something about experts. Medical science is wonderful, and becomes more wonderful every day. I am as much fascinated by it as when I was teaching school to get money enough to become a doctor. But there is a temptation to exalt ourselves at nature's expense. The best we can do it seems to me, is to try humbly to be assistants of Nature, not her bosses. That is particularly true of obstetrics, and the care of infant children. You can't reduce everything to formulae, to a law of averages. Some doctors I know, it seems to me, make a great mistake there. They seem to think they are observing a law of averages when they are trying to reduce everything to a deadly uniformity. They forget that the more reliable average in any sector of life must allow for instances that are above and below the standard. Otherwise there could be no average. It is as foolish to reduce some things to an average as it is to mourn because some other things are not up to the average."

"For instance?" I suggested, hoping to get down to cases, and Dr. Quick quickly came to cases.

"Well, you have read, of course, that babies of a certain age should be of a certain weight—an application of the law of averages. But there are perfect human beings of less than average size, and perfect human beings of more than average size. Most of us are the products of much mingling of types, and in human beings, similar characteristics unexpectedly appear—among other things, even to a particularly eloquent sigh when she comes in on a hot day."

"What farmers call the throw-back," I said.

"Exactly. Sometimes large men and women have small children. Sometimes you see an unusually large child in a family of average size—haven't you noticed that?"

"This happens to be one in our house," I answered. "On my side of the house the men are usually above the average; but our women generally have been on the smaller side. But we have a girl who was five feet eight at thirteen. She climbed the stairs at five months, and weighed thirty pounds when she was six months old, and her mother had a six-foot sister. We have another daughter who, though she does not look a bit like my eldest sister, in many respects acts like her. They say I'm not a bit like my sister; but my daughter has some of the distinctions, even to a particularly eloquent sigh when she comes in on a hot day."

Calamitously Overweight.

THEN you will understand my point, which is that in rearing infants, a hundred facts and the possibilities of a thousand ancestors have to be taken into account," Dr. Quick continued. "You asked for a case. I'll give you one. Some time ago a wealthy man consulted me about his prospective first child. I found an abnormal condition, which made a Cæsarian operation imperative—it was the only way to save both lives. Everything passed off happily. The baby weighed nine pounds, and threw splendidly on nature's food. When it was four months old, visiting the mother, suggested weighing the baby. She had been schooled in the Expert school, and found the baby was a pound and a half above the proper weight for a child of that age. This was alarming, and she induced the mother to take the baby to her Expert. He said the child was too fat, and was getting nourishment too copiously, and too easily. He reduced the breast feeding to twice a day, and ordered a prepared buttermilk for it. When the child was at her mother's, the mother was to lie on her back, and the child be held so that it would have to swallow the milk to its stomach. I remarked: 'Great is the mystery of the Expert.' I ejaculated, wondering, 'What was coming next?'

"This happened a while; and then I was called in, not knowing what had happened. I found the child in a poor way—much thinner, and the blood was gone from it. When the parents told me the story I said I wasn't a bit sorry for them; but I was very sorry for the poor little lamb. 'Go on with your Expert,' I said, and when the baby is nearly dead, send for me.' As I had told the father four months before, the child was born with a Cæsarian operation would be necessary—did you know that the operation is so called because it is said that Julius Cæsar came into the world that way—he dispensed with the Expert, and let Nature alone henceforth, with natural results. You see, the mother is somewhat above the average in flesh, though very small-boned; and the father is a huge man. It was entirely natural that the child should be above the average as your own was. But the Expert, getting five dollars for each weekly visit, must find fault with Nature when Nature was in one of her best moods. The youngster's constitution might have been ruined, and a family's happiness with it."

"Of course, I believe in doing everything that experience can suggest for mothers and children. But do not believe in the propaganda of fear that is being carried on with our noble profession. There is a tendency to put so many 'Thou shalt' into women's minds, that they are in mortal dread when they should live in brightest hope—as little Mrs. Wargrove did. It is becoming the fashion to be fussy, which is worse than not being careful enough. Look at this idea of giving babies a doctored kind of buttermilk. Some Experts order a sort of whey; and you can find whey babies all around. Poor sickly little things."

BOTTOMLEY MISSES HIS PET COLLIE DOG

Convicted M.P. and Editor Reaffirms
His Innocence in the Prison of Wormwood Scrubs.

"BRAZEN BOTTOMLEY," he has been called. A million people avidly devoured his scathing paragraphs in John Bull. Unfortunately, they entrusted their money to him.

Then Horatio Bottomley crashed. Town houses, country houses, racchorses, servants, luxury—he was cut off at a stroke from his princely extravagance. An elderly man, he wakened one morning in Wormwood Scrubs, one of the strongest penal institutions in all England, with his sentence of seven years hanging over his head.

What was his reaction? Was he the prey of remorse?

He was "Brazen Bottomley" still; still, compound of audacity, bravado and sentimentality.

He missed his dog most of all, he said in an interview.

"What do I miss—well, I hardly know how to tell you. But I feel the absence of pets. How's Fephe?"

Fephe is a gruff brown collie dog living at Bottomley's country house, at Dicker, in Sussex. In the small and somewhat Spartan bedroom which Bottomley occupied at Dicker—the larger, more lavish and luxurious rooms were reserved for his guests—there are two beds. Neither of them is any bigger than the one in which he sleeps at Wormwood Scrubs. In one bed Bottomley slept, on the other bed slept Fephe.

"I knew something was going wrong at the trial," said Bottomley, "because of that dog. She was a mass of nerves while all the proceedings were on, and jumped up again and again in the night to put a paw on my arm and find out if I was really there."

"Usually Fephe is one of the quietest dogs that were ever born, but lately she has been obsessed with a sense of impending disaster. She has kept me awake by howling in the night, and has come continually to my bedside. Yet you can tell me that dogs have no souls. I don't quite believe you."

"At any rate, I know that Fephe is a more miserable creature than I am at this moment, and more conscious of the loss of companionship."

There was nothing of the crushed and humiliated man about Bottomley. The broad shoulders were squared. The great head was thrown back. If the face was white the eyes were as keen as steel. Three days of prison life had been to him like three drops of water on the head of a mastiff.

It was just before his trial, he declared, with a break in his voice, that he had been promised a privy councillorship. It was his wish for unhampered independence that caused him to decline.

Defiantly he asserted:

"When I think of the condition of our national finance, of Ireland, of Egypt, of India, and of the empire as a whole, I would rather be Horatio Bottomley in Wormwood Scrubs, a convicted felon—but convicted for a crime which he never committed—than I would be Lloyd George, prime minister, in Downing street."

"Do you know why they don't like to see you shake hands with me?" he asked, with a sad, curious grey smile upon his face. "It is because they think that during our handshake you might give me poison. The authorities who have been so anxious to destroy my reputation are equally anxious to preserve my life. They think I might commit suicide."

It is only "the blindness of the prison officials that wounds him." At times in the prison he has "felt with the heart of a child." He is "fortified by the faith that he will regain the paradise of honor and love in the public mind."

EX-PRESIDENT FINDS REST FROM VAUDEVILLE

Wilson is Carried Into a Washington
Theatre Every Saturday Night.

IT is a new human touch about ex-President Wilson that genial Tom Wise, the celebrated comic actor, now starring with the Robins Players in Toronto, has brought back from Washington.

A few nights ago Mr. Wise played for Mr. Wilson at the Keith Theatre, where he attends regularly every Saturday night to forget his infirmities in the humor and variety of this high-class vaudeville show.

A vivid picture of the man who was once rejected, but is now ironically becoming the most popular man in the United States, is sketched by Mr. Wise. Every Saturday evening the ex-president motors down the alley at the side of the theatre to a particular exit door. He is then lifted by his attendants from his car across the sill to his seat. "Till the last gun or the last picture he is in the show," says Mr. Wise.

There were about twenty-five of us in the show. We all gathered the other night at the stage door and cheered him as he was helped to his car. He told us that he is getting stronger every day. In the cross street in front of the theatre fully five thousand people applauded him as he drove away. The people are at last recognizing his greatness, and there is no one now more popular than Mr. Wilson is."

THE MIRACLE WORKER.
ANYONE can criticize, but it requires a really clever person to get money and keep friends and do the trick.

Chinese Ambassador Jokes on the Result of an Embassy Tiff.

THE appointment of Wu Ting-fang, former Chinese minister to the United States, as premier, recalls to the service of his country one of the wittiest and most picturesque figures diplomacy has ever brought to this continent.

Once he was passing down Connecticut avenue in Washington when he came upon a first-rate dog fight.

One dog was a Russian wolfhound belonging to the Count Cassini, then Russian ambassador to the United States. The other was an English bulldog belonging to the secretaries of the British embassy in Washington. A Russian groom and an English groom were out with the unleashed dogs giving them their daily constitutional, and the two dogs went at each other.

The two grooms tried to pull them apart. Wu, strolling on Connecticut avenue, stopped and watched with obvious interest. It was a pretty even thing, and at length the English servant contrived to pull the bulldog from the wolfhound.

"History turned back a page there," observed Wu to a friend who came up just as the dogs were pried apart, "and gave us a first-hand view of the conflict."

"Over my head," said Wu's friend.

"You know to whom these dogs belong?" inquired Wu.

"Yes—one of them belongs to the Russian embassy and the other to the British embassy."

"So," said Wu. "Well, we had the Crimea over again, didn't we? That affair was a sort of tie, wasn't it?"

BALFOUR'S LONG WORDS ARE THE EUGENIC OF REPORTERS

THE Earl of Balfour has a habit of using tremendous words in his speeches, for example, "terminological inexactitude," which he once sprang on the world. But the other day, in a political speech, he referred to the Pacific Ocean and its "limitrophe continents." His hearers were stunned.

Some of those present thought he meant that the continents were the limit. Others believed that some contagious disease was raging on the Pacific coasts. But "limitrophe" only means "bordering," and why Lord Balfour couldn't have said so is a mystery.

A reporter was once asked how fast the newly-created earl spoke.

"He speaks quite rapidly," replied the reporter. "About twenty words a minute."

"But that is not fast!" said the inquirer.

"Yes, it is—when the words are Balfour's."

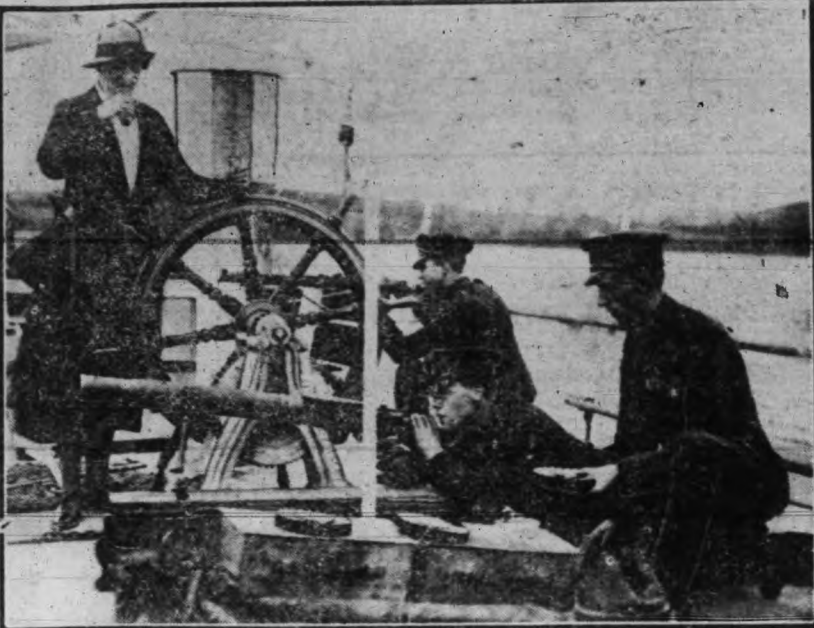

The Earl of Balfour plays bridge. Preserve us from the day when, with a good hand of spades, he will call: "Two circular figures with pointed pinnacles and pedestals!"

"Leave it to the Lord!"

REV. DR. W. R. YOUNG, pastor of College St. Methodist Church, Toronto, is one clergyman who believes in the wise blending of religion and business. He is on the insurance commission of the Methodist Church, and is a keen advocate of the policy of insuring church buildings.

"You know," said Dr. Young to some of the "brethren" the other day, "you can carry this thing of leaving everything to the Lord too far. For instance, there is on the minutes of a Methodist Church quarterly board in a little village of eastern Ontario a resolution which reads something like this:

"Resolved that we hereby discontinue the insurance on the church and leave it to the Lord to look after His own property."

Irish Lady Admiral at the Helm.

OUT of the fighting area of Ireland comes the fame of Mrs. Laverton, who piloted her yacht, "Pandora," loaded with special constables, up the river Erne from Donegal bay to reinforce Magherameena Castle, besieged by the Sinn Féiners. Although unsuccessful in saving the castle, Mrs. Laverton and her special constables, with their Lewis guns, beat off an attack on the ship. Attached to Mrs. Laverton's belt will be noted a large-sized service revolver, open in its holster, ready for use.

Chief Librarian Discovers to His Amazement That Methodism Charms Book Agents Away

Men are Often Puzzled Stiff by a Busy Official's Unusual Farewell—The Exceptions are Women With a Mission in the World.

TESTIMONY of the astounding efficiency of Methodism as a weapon with which to foil book agents is given by that well-known humorist, the chief librarian of Toronto, Dr. Geo. Locke.

On men especially Dr. Locke has found it to work at times like a charm, amazing even to him with his keen knowledge of the human mind.

"Here, at the library, we leave all our office doors wide open. We are different to what they are at the city hall," the doctor explains, as a smile crinkles his lips. "Suffer fools gladly, welcome everybody," he says, with an inclusive sweep of his arm.

It was a long, slow persistent member of the male sex who stood looking the doctor over one day for an overwhelming means of approach. First he looked at the librarian's lapel, then at his finger, and, finally, at his watch chain for some sign of what fraternal order his prospective purchaser might belong. There was not a trace of a triangle, three links or any of the familiar insignia, and, as a last resource, he leaned over close to the doctor's ear.

"Are you a Mason?" he whispered, confidentially.

"No, no, a Methodist," answered Dr. Locke, leading him hurriedly towards the door, as if a contagious disease had been mentioned, and he was frightened out of his life. He left his amazed book agent in the hall and gingerly closed the door.

Attendants in the library were as puzzled as this long, lanky individual, who stood scratching his head in the hall for five minutes before he recovered his sense of reality and discovered there was another door to the office from which he had so strangely come.

Looking down once again on the dumbfounded librarian, he slowly asked for enlightenment on this serious point:

"But, surely, doctor, a man can be a Mason as well as a Methodist—is it—?"

"No, utterly impossible," replied the doctor, looking frightenedly around the room, as he rushed his amazed questioner through the second door.

But women are more dangerous, especially women with a mission, the doctor has learnt by experience. "Keep clear of them," is his ripe advice. Even Methodism has no terrors for them.

"Are you saved?" asked a demure, little lady, as she leaned over from her chair towards him, with tears in her eyes.

Too astounded almost for words by the unexpected approach, Dr. Locke at last stuttered out:

"Oh, yes, of course, I'm a Methodist, and that's our specialty. Of course, I'm saved."

"But what will you do when Shiloh comes?" asked his sad questioner.

"I don't know, I'm sure," he confessed, at a loss. "What will you do?"

"This will tell you everything," answered the little lady, spreading out a roll of pamphlets as round as the doctor's arm.

WOULD WHISKERS DO THE TRICK?

To-day's Statesmen as Great Victorians

DEAN INGE, the gloomy dean of St. Paul's, asks whether the great men of to-day can compare in physical and intellectual stature with the great Victorians. He asks people to set up portraits of Salisbury, Darwin and Gladstone and candidly ask themselves whether there are any longer among us men of their stature. Here is a good chance for the artist to show that perhaps it is principally the absence of whiskers that makes the dean gloomy about the great men of to-day. The striking resemblance can be seen in the comparisons between Lloyd George and Lord Salisbury, the Earl of Balfour as if he were Darwin, and Viscount Grey in the likeness of Gladstone.

Bishop Christened by Sourdough's Mistake

Stringer's Second Initial Records an Odd
Moment of His Life.

FEW of the thousands of Canadians who know Bishop I. O. Stringer know that the veteran clergyman, described by an "old-timer" in the Yukon as "the squarest guy that ever went into the north; known and loved by every man and roughneck, every Indian and Eskimo in the Yukon," derives part of his name from one of the most odd incidents that could befall a missionary, though thoroughly Stringer-esque.

The story was recently disclosed when the bishop visited Vancouver and addressed the Yukon Order of Pioneers at their annual dinner.

Bishop Stringer, a "sourdough" of thirty years' standing, was once as costed in the early Yukon days by a prospector who needed money, what for the bishop wasn't told, for it may have been for anything from food to the settlement of a poker game. He did not ask and the money was promptly forthcoming, but forthcoming so fast that the recipient was somewhat disconcerted. He wanted, he said, no man "to take his word." If he was going to take a loan he desired "writings."

The bishop agreed. "Just make it," he said, "an I. O. U." The old-timer's knowledge of I. O. U.'s was vague. He wrote instead "I. O. Stringer" and "I. O. Stringer" it is to this day, though the bishop has no claim whatever to the second initial.

THE SUPER-COW OF LEEDS THAT PREMIER DRURY ATE

Shows the U.F.O. Preppier's Keen Sense of Humor Even Early in His Career.

BEEF was expensive as well as tough in the dairymaking county of Leeds, even in the days when Premier Drury had just been graduated from the College of Agriculture at Guelph. Cows, as a general rule, in Leeds, were kept till the limit of their usefulness as milkers was past before they were sold for meat. This fact the future premier learned by dire experience.

It was this week while passing the farm at Crown Hill with its juicy young heifers that one of the men who spoke on the same platform with the premier recalled Mr. Drury's first experience with "cow" from Leeds.

"Mr. Drury was delivering lectures to the Farmers' Institutes throughout the province at the time," our informant recalled, "and there were three of us speaking this night."

"The first speaker dilated on the importance of the dairymaking industry in the province and how expensive a cow had become, particularly in Leeds. In fact, he said, vividly, concluding his speech, if he could have his way he would substitute the cow for the beaver on Ontario's coat of arms."

Inspired by the first speaker, the thoughts of the second turned towards the same super-cow of Leeds. He told of its ancestors, tracing them back even to the cow that was given to every United Empire Loyalist family that settled in Upper Canada.

"You have heard a great deal about the famous cow of Leeds this evening," said Mr. Drury, whose address came next. "The first speaker has told you of its fame, suggesting even that it should replace the beaver on the provincial coat of arms. The second speaker has traced its ancestry back to the United Empire Loyalists. But, ladies and gentlemen, you won't hear any more about that cow to-night. I just ate it at your hotel."

Lemieux's Swift Answer A Joke on Blondin's Job

When Twitted With Quoting Kipling at a Montreal Meeting.

IT was during the very strenuous days of the 1917 election campaign. Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, now speaker of the House of Commons, then representing Gaspe, attended a meeting in the Monument Nationale Theatre, Montreal, where he spoke on behalf of Mr. S. W. Jacobs, who was running for the first time in George Etienne Cartier division.

Mr. Lemieux made some rather disparaging comments about the then postmaster-general, Hon. P. E. Blondin. Continuing to speak about British and Canadian relations, he remarked:

"Daughter am I in my mother's home, but mistress in my own."

He was chaffed some time later by another speaker about this remark.

Quick as a flash, and with an esprit de corps which brought down the house, Mr. Lemieux retorted: "I said Mr. Blondin was a man of letters, not I."

CAMPBELL WISHED TO CONVERT THE HEATHEN

No Good in Getting Righteous to Cheer
Repentance

ISAAC CAMPBELL, K.C., formerly city solicitor of Winnipeg and for many years one of the leaders of the Manitoba bar, is a most pleasing and convincing expositor of abstruse political questions. In the old days before group governments were heard of Mr. Campbell was in great demand as a stump speaker on the Liberal side. In one campaign he addressed a series of meetings in the small towns between Portage la Prairie and Brandon, and met with such success that his tour resembled a triumphal procession. On his return to Winnipeg a friend offered his congratulations on the success of the tour, but was surprised to find that Mr. Campbell viewed the results with dissatisfaction.

"But," said the friend, "you had crowded meetings, aroused intense enthusiasm, were cheered to the echo; not an opponent, not even a heckler, dared to raise his head. What do you want?"

"Of course, of course," said Mr. Campbell testily, "but don't you see they were all Grits, all convinced, whereas my aim was to meet those unconvinced and opposed, and do some missionary work?"

A Start in Life

JOE BROWN was the colored porter at a little bank in southern Kansas. One spring day he rested on his broom and looked outdoors where Nature beckoned him down to the river where he might dote and wait for a catfish nibble on his line.

"Gee, boss," he declared fervently, "I suttinly do wish Ah had a million dollars!"

"A million dollars, Joe?" the cashier said, smiling. "What would you do with a million dollars?"

"Ah'd buy me some pigs and make me some money."—Judge.

Are You a Born Advertiser?

Certain merchants get a reputation for being born advertisers.

They may have earned the reputation. They were not born that way. Their particular genius has lain in the fact that, having marvelous faith in the power of Daily Newspaper Advertising, they went ahead with it regardless of immediate results.

They had courage. And the courageous advertiser gets the greatest rewards.

There are those whose temperament is not suited to Napoleonic tactics. Neither will their product or pocket-book permit them to use these tactics even if they were so inclined.

Daily Newspaper Advertising is as another brain to the sales force of these men. It is the one medium from which they get quick and accurate returns; and are so able to repeat their advertisements as often as conditions warrant, and the treasury justifies.

This is particularly true at this time of the year when the season, the weather, the change of fashion, the state of public mind and attitude of competitors, all combine to affect daily sales.

The born advertiser is not necessarily the large space advertiser nor does he have to have more than one thing to advertise.

If he is quick to seize every incident in his daily life and capitalize it in his next day's advertising—the public will soon pay him that tribute of admiration expressed in the words "a born advertiser."

NEW B.C. OFFICE OF INLAND MISSION

Organization Is Doing Great Work in China

The headquarters of the China Inland Mission in British Columbia will in future be at 1644 Eleventh Avenue West, Vancouver. Rev. Charles Thompson, for twenty years a missionary of the C. I. M. in China, is the district secretary, his field being the western provinces and states. The C. I. M. is interdenominational, international and evangelistic, and has a total effective force of 1073 missionaries and over 2,000 Chinese workers located in 245 central stations and 1580 out stations in sixteen of the provinces of China.

During the past year the C. I. M. lost fifteen of its missionaries by death, and only once since the martyr year of 1906 have so many been removed in one year. Seventy-two new missionaries joined the mission in 1921. Though 1921 was a year of real financial testing, this mission, which never goes into debt under any circumstances, makes no appeal for money nor takes up collection, and is wholly supported by purely free-will offerings was carried through.

Received $790,800 in 1921. The income for 1921 was approximately $790,800 and of this sum there was received in Great Britain $250,165, in Canada and the United States $209,825, in Australia $38,225, in China $71,725, and for associates $210,810. These figures are remarkable when regard is had to the economic conditions which prevailed throughout the world last year. The income in sterling was much less than in 1920, but owing to the improved rate of exchange in China, the smaller income than in 1921 realized considerably more than the larger income of the previous year. The number of donations also were 911 in excess of those received in 1920.

In addition the mission received and distributed for famine relief $182,500 and by this work thousands of families were helped from starvation. Sixteen famine boys' schools and eleven famine girls' schools with about 2,000 pupils were maintained; more than 1,000 nursing and expectant mothers were helped through their anxious months of need; seed-grain for sowing was distributed to impoverished farmers, and many children sold by parents who were driven to this desperate step by starvation were redeemed and restored.

Work of Missionaries. This work entailed on missionaries engaged in it, incessant travelling, constant vigilance, sleepless nights and strenuous days of exacting and painful toil amid harrowing conditions. It may also be stated that as regards spiritual results, notwithstanding the difficult political conditions in China, the widespread unrest and disorder under which the work of the mission has been carried on, the results are very encouraging. The baptisms of converts in 1921 were 1,000 in advance of the year 1920, the number being 5,342. These figures raise the total of converts baptised from the commencement of the mission's work to 55,434.

CARDINALS MAY LIVE IN VATICAN

Two Floors Made Apartments for Homeless Princes of Church

Rome, June 30.—Whenever new Cardinals who have to reside in Rome are created, there arises the knotty question: "Where shall they live?" These Princes of the church are by no means rich. In fact, many have availed themselves of the late Pope's permission to take exercise on foot if they find the keeping or hire of a carriage or motor beyond them. Pope Pius XI. will shortly hold a new consistory and has thought out the problem of homes for those of them who must live in Rome. As the large building where the Holy Office has its headquarters is too large for the needs of the office, two floors are being adapted as habitations, being split up into four apartments. These will be placed at a very low rent at the disposal of homeless members of the Sacred College when ready to live in.

Mgr. Maramaghi, the Apostolic Delegate to Rumania, has been busy in that country hunting for Italian war prisoners who were sent there by the Austro-Hungarian Government from prison camps to work on farms. As it is to the interest of those on whose land they work not to say that the war is over, many of these unfortunate men are still under the belief that the war is going on all the time. Living on these vast estates that are a relic of mediaeval conditions in Rumania, far from any town, surrounded by Rumanian peasants who themselves neither read nor write and cannot tell these unhappy exiles the news, the Italians get no newspapers and are unable to claim repatriation. It has happened once or twice lately that Italian engineers, prospecting in the old fields, have come across fellow countrymen who have wept with joy to hear the glad news that the war is over and they can go home again.

The late Pope, who heard of these cases, instructed Mgr. Maramaghi to seek out such men and help the Italian Military Mission at Bucharest with information as to their whereabouts, and quite a number of belated war prisoners are now on their way home. The search was very difficult owing to the lack of communications in Rumania and the unwillingness of employers, who were still getting Italian prisoners' labor at absurdly low rates, to give information.

"Half Fortress, Half Church"

DURHAM CATHEDRAL

The above picture, showing the West Towers from the cloisters, draws attention to the repairs now being executed there.

QUERY MAINTENANCE OF BRITISH CATHEDRALS

Bishop Welldon (Dean of Durham) in the course of an interview, prompted by the work of building which has been recently undertaken at Durham Cathedral, England, refers to the financial position of the cathedrals of the country generally. He said: "There are, I suppose, no buildings which make such an appeal to the historical and spiritual imagination of so many people as the cathedrals. It is, in my opinion, desirable that the cathedrals should be the homes of worship and learning. It would be a great pity that they should be so impoverished as to be unable to maintain the liberty and the stateliness of their services and the staff of their clergy."

There is a question of taking the custody of the cathedrals out of the hands of the Deans and Chapters and present it to the Government. No doubt such a transference would affect the relation of the Church of England to the cathedrals, but all the arguments which are justly used in favor of hospitals as voluntarily maintained rather than supported by Government are applicable to cathedrals. It can hardly be supposed that a Government Department would treat them with the same taste or the same reverence as a religious body like the Dean and Chapter.

Yet cathedrals or most of them are falling into a state of impecuniosity. Taxation has hit them hard; the rates of wages and the cost of material have hit them hard.

It is time that the future of the cathedrals should be discussed by the National Assembly of the Church of England. I am inclined to think that the Ecclesiastical Commission out of the revenues which it derives from certain bishoprics and cathedrals should be compelled to make such provision that the cathedrals may not fall into a state of decay from which it will be in future possible to rescue them.

THE PRESBYTERIAN SUNDAY SCHOOL

The modern Sunday School shows marked advancement, not only in numerical strength, but in improved methods based on modern pedagogy with gradings and groupings suggested in part by the Public School system. As a result, much better work is being done in what has been well called the Bible School. The Presbyterian Church in Canada, for example, has nearly four thousand Sunday Schools, with a total enrolment of 318,000, including officers, teachers and scholars. During 1920, 135 new Sunday Schools were started in one Church, carrying with it an increase of over 11,000 in enrolment. In many cases the Mission Sunday School is the forerunner of a permanent church, and one of the chief services rendered by the modern Home Missionary is the starting of schools at various centres in this far-flung field, especially in the West. The day has gone by when the Sunday School is spoken of as of secondary importance. It has become an essential factor in the ethical training of thousands of children, and it is, in some cases, the only training of this character they receive.

SIDNEY STRAWBERRY TEA A SUCCESS

(Times Correspondence) Sidney:—The Ladies' Aid of the Union Church held a strawberry tea on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Taylor. There was a large attendance and a very good orchestra played during tea. There was a stall of ice cream and home cooking, and a stall of balls and rubber balloons for the children. The steamship Squid put in here this week with a broken condenser. Messrs. Copeland and Wright repaired the boat. After working hard all night they had ready to put to sea again the next morning. Mr. F. Hommill, of Resthaven, has gone to Seattle to attend the Nurses' convention being held in that city. St. Andrew's branch of the Girls' W. A. held their meeting at the house of Mrs. Harrison this week. Arrangements were made about articles intended for the sale of work which is to be held later in the year. Miss Phyllis Creighton and Miss Viola Gurton were presented with membership cards and club badges as they are to leave the district shortly.

JOIN THE CHURCH

(By Daniel A. Poling).

1. I OUGHT to belong to the Church because I ought to be better than I am. Henry Ward Beecher once said, "The Church is not a gallery for the exhibition of eminent Christians, but a school for the education of imperfect ones."
2. I OUGHT to belong to the Church because of what I can give to it and do through it as well as because of what I may get out of it. The Church is not a dormitory for sleepers, it is an institution of workers; it is not a rest camp, it is a front line trench.
3. I OUGHT to belong to the Church because every man ought to pay his debts and do his share toward discharging the obligations of society. The Church has not only been the bearer of the good news of personal salvation; it has been and it is the supreme uplifting and conserving agency without which "Civilization would lapse into barbarism and press its way to perdition."
4. I OUGHT to belong to the Church because of memories; memories of things I can never forget, memories of faces that will never fade; memories of vows that are the glory of youth.
5. I OUGHT to belong to the Church because of hope; hope that lives when promises are dead; hope that paves the way for progress; hope that visions peace and social justice; hope for time, and hope for eternity—the great hope that casts its anchor behind Jesus Christ.
6. I OUGHT to belong to the Church because of the strong men in it who need reinforcing; the weak men in it who need en-couraging; the rascals in it who need rebuking. If I say that I am not good enough in my humility recommends me. If I sit in the seat of the scornful my inactivity condemns me.
7. I OUGHT to belong to the Church, but not until I am ready to join a going concern; not until I am willing to become an active partner with Jesus Christ.

CHURCHES PREPARE FOR SUMMER RECESS

Holidays Will Deplete Attendance at Religious Services

The opening of the Summer holidays will undoubtedly have their effect on the attendance at religious services and church meetings during the next two months, as well as in other ways.

The pastors and ministers of the various churches will be making arrangements for their holidays and for carrying on the work of the church in their absence.

There have been an unusually large number of conferences in British Columbia of a religious nature during the past two months. All the denominations have held meetings, and are able to show substantial gains in membership, and report forward policies for the coming year.

The visit of the late head of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, Dr. C. W. Gordon, of the head of the Reformed Episcopal Church, Dr. Frewing, of Dr. G. Campbell Morgan, the great Bible expositor, and of the representative churchmen from the Church of Scotland have been outstanding events of the last few weeks in church circles.

A reaction against this exceptional activity is inevitable, and the churches will be the first to feel the effect.

At Cathedral.—The Dean of Columbia, Very Rev. C. S. Quainton, will preach a special course of sermons in Christ Church Cathedral on Sunday evenings during the Summer months on "What Certain Great Writers Have Seen in the Face of Christ." The subjects for the Sunday evenings of July will be: July 2, Francis Thompson's "Hound of Heaven"; July 3, Tennyson's "In Memoriam"; July 16, Browning's "Saul"; July 23, Hawthorne's "Salem's Lot"; July 30, George Eliot.

METHODISTS REQUIRE MORE MONETARY AID

Toronto, June 30.—The Toronto Methodist conference, of which Rev. Isaac G. Bowles is the new president, in session here, received a report from its missionary committee, which stated that the church is confronted with the problem of curtailing its missionary activities or raising a larger fund in order that those who take up the work may be provided with a living allowance. The general conference in 1915 set out with the objective of raising $5,000,000 for the missionary fund, and with but one year to go, they are still $2,000,000 short of the total, so the committee pointed out that the church must face its missionary problems fairly and set out upon a more energetic campaign of raising funds, unless the work is to fall short of its aim. The committee, therefore, recommends that this year the conference missionary objective be not less than that of last year, $5,250,000. It advises a personal canvass and a campaign to begin on Sunday, October 8.

Despite the rather pessimistic tone of this talk, the record of the past four years in missionary giving has been remarkable. It has been the greatest in the history of the church. Including the national campaign, the total gifts were $6 per cent. greater, and there was an increase of 54 per cent. in the current income.

The committee outlines the extent of the home and foreign mission work. "In this homeland we have 420 missions to English-speaking peoples in sparsely settled districts. Last year 617 graduates of mission schools entered mission work. These included graduates in arts, three doctors, two pharmacists, one dentist, and 54 per cent. in the current income.

Membership Good. "In Japan we have a church membership of 22,000 and report 2,000 adult baptisms during the last year. Nearly 100 Methodist churches are self-supporting, and the mission schools and colleges are crowded. The Japanese Christians contributed to the Forward movement the sum of $60,000 yen, which is equivalent to approximately $300,000, or an average of $14 a member.

"In China for several years a gradually enlarging group of Chinese ordained ministers, probationers for ministry and 'helpers' have shared responsibility for evangelistic and pastoral work. Over 10,000 Sunday school scholars, and 6,000 day school pupils are being trained in the home field.

PRIZE-GIVING ST.

GEORGE'S SCHOOL

Dean of Columbia Officiated at Annual Gathering Yesterday

St. George's School, Rockland Avenue, held its annual prize distribution yesterday afternoon on the school lawn, where the many students in their white frocks and scarlet sashes presented a charming picture of girlhood. Very Rev. the Dean of Columbia presented the prizes, each successful student being warmly applauded by the large gathering of parents and friends as she went forward to receive her prize or trophy. At the close of the distribution, the Dean addressed the students, congratulating the Principal, Mrs. Suttie, and her teaching staff and the successful students on the progress made during the year. The formal proceedings were followed with the serving of tea on the smaller lawn. The prize list follows:

THERE IS DANGER IN WATERY BLOOD

If Not Corrected Serious Results May Follow.

In no trouble is delay or neglect more dangerous than in anemia, a poverty of the blood. It is very common in young girls and in persons who are overworked or confined within doors. It makes its approach in so stealthy a manner that it is often well developed before its presence is recognized.

But taken in time there is a tonic medicine which increases the number of red blood corpuscles thus enabling the blood to carry the life-giving oxygen to all the tissues of the body. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have had much success in the treatment of this stubborn trouble because of this wonderful property.

The correction of anemic conditions by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is as certain as anything can be. Take as an example the case of Miss Mary D. Kelly, Charlotteville, P. E. I., who says:—"My blood was thin and watery, and my system very much run down. I could not do any work or walk upstairs without resting. I suffered greatly from headaches, my appetite was poor and I was also troubled with indigestion. I began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and in a short time the result showed they were just the medicine I needed. I only used six boxes but am now feeling stronger and better than I have done for several years. From my personal experience I can strongly recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

These pills are sold by all medicine dealers or will be sent by mail at 25 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 by The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

BIG SHAKE-UP IS PLANNED BY SAANICH VICTORIAN ORDER

Directors Resign, Nurse Transfers and Dentist Service Ends

Councillor Dooley last night reported to the Saanich Council upon impending changes in the administration and operation of the War Memorial Health Centre and the organization and staff of the Saanich branch of the Victorian Order of Nurses.

"We have arranged for the transfer of our head nurse and the engagement of another, the caretaker and his wife will be replaced, and we have terminated the arrangement with the dentist for use of half his time," reported the councillor, who with Councillor Pim represents the Council upon the directorate of the order.

Secretary Greene and Treasurer Sewell have resigned as directors, and a meeting of the Victorian Order has been called for July 11 to elect successors to them," he continued.

"Mrs. Hanington, superintendent of the Victorian Order, was present at the meeting held last Tuesday evening, which resulted in these changes and has approved of handling maternity cases, should the directors so decide," explained Councillor Dooley, who regretted the resignations of the two municipal officials from the directorate on grounds of efficient service rendered, but believed their course would end an anomalous position, where they were compensated to take sides on questions of policy.

Councillor Pim briefly supported his fellow director, stating, "If some of these changes in the staff had been made myself, I would have had to get out myself."

No comment was made by other members of the Council.
